Climax Reached In Piggly Wiggly Stock Campaign

Saunders Opens Negotiations With Other Cities When Memphis Plan Fails.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Memphis, Tenn., May 10.—Piggly Wiggly Stores, Inc., tonight awaited the beckoning word from either of half a dozen cities while Memphis business interests made ready for a final effort to perfect financial arrangements and an understanding satisfactory to Clarence Saunders, head of the organization and its board of directors and "pool" members to retain headquarters of the institution in this city, with disposal of 50,000 shares of stock of the incorporation the main point at issue.

Mr. Saunders brought the situation to a climax today after a three-day stock-selling campaign which failed to reach the goal—in a statement taking to task certain "banking interests" and announced that he had opened negotiations with other cities looking to a "trade" that would necessarily result in transferring headquarters from Memphis. This was followed by an extended conference late today with others interested in the affairs of Piggly Wiggly, and, in turn, by an announcement by E. O. Bailey, president of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce, which sponsored the stock-selling campaign, that efforts to obtain subscriptions to the 50,000 stock block would be discontinued in view of Mr. Saunders' declaration.

To Continue Efforts.
Mr. Bailey declared, however, the chamber of commerce would "continue its efforts in every other way to find some method of procedure to retain Piggly Wiggly headquarters in this city."

Announcement was made after the conference this afternoon that the question still was open with a committee named to confer with Memphis financial interests. Another meeting will be held tomorrow.

Disposal of the 50,000 block of stock, Mr. Saunders explained, was necessary to safeguard the interests of members of the pool with which he was associated in a recent sensational trading in Piggly Wiggly on the New York stock exchange, which turned Wall street topsy-turvy for a day and ended with the passing of Piggly Wiggly as a trading stock on the "big board." This, in turn, was followed by a spirited attack by Mr. Saunders on what he termed "Wall street methods" and a declaration that, thereafter, he would look "to the public" for a market for his stock.

Willing to Retire.
Mr. Saunders, in his statement, announced his willingness to retire from the presidency of the organization and declared his interests in the pool would not be considered until the interests of other members had been provided for.

The statement issued by Mr. Saunders scored certain "interests" which, he charged, had failed to co-operate in the placing of the stock.

"No one will acknowledge personal animosity but, whether the acknowledgment is made or not, the truth is otherwise," he declared.

"I consider this a clean-cut statement from a man who has the best interests of Memphis at heart and I believe has done everything possible within his power to retain the Piggly Wiggly system for Memphis," Mr. Saunders said in commenting on Mr. Saunders' declaration.

Announcement was made that the chamber of commerce committee named to handle the financial affairs of the stock would continue to function and, in the event the headquarters of the concern is moved from Memphis, all money turned over to it and contracts executed will be returned to the subscribers for stock.

Waycross, Ga., May 10.—Opening at the Presbyterian church this morning with the election of officers, the King's Daughters convention of Georgia, in session in this city, received the report of various outstanding committees and elected officers for ensuing year. Miss Kate Hall, of Savannah, was elected president of the order for the coming year.

Other officers elected were: Central council member, Mrs. W. E. Reeves, of Augusta; first vice president, Mrs. G. P. Folks, Waycross; second vice president, Mrs. W. E. PROMISES MADE TO MAKE RENO "WIDE OPEN TOWN"

Reno, Nev., May 10.—Reno has voted the lid off.

She will soon again be a "wide open town" with bright lights and all the other joys that have gone to make her a Mecca for prominent divorcees and pleasure-seekers from all parts of the United States in years gone by. If the candidates overwhelmingly elected Wednesday, keep their campaign promises.

Former Congressman E. E. Roberts, advocating a "liberal interpretation" of the city ordinance, was elected by 2,923 votes. His closest opponent drew 970.

Candidates for the city council, with slogans varying from "Make the town gay" to "Let's get back to the old times and the old ways," won as easily as Roberts. Their promises of what Reno might expect were of the broadest sort.

"Blue law" candidates, objecting to restricted districts and promising to clamp the lid on all sorts of purported vice, took the worst trouncing in the history of the town.

BRUTAL SON FREED BY STRONG PULL OF MOTHER-LOVE

Milwaukee, Wis., May 10.—Bent under her sixty odd years, a frail little gray-haired woman bobbled to the clerk's bench in district court here Wednesday and slowly counted out $13.31 which she had borrowed to pay the fine of her son, who was charged with having struck her and then chased her out of her home into the blizzard of Tuesday night.

This act of Mrs. Catherine Murphy saved her son, Patrick, 35, from a prison sentence, when he did not have the money to pay the fine ordered by Judge George Page.

"Patrick is a dear boy," the aged mother told the court clerk, "and I forgive him for what he has done. He was not responsible because he was drinking."

WIDOW OF STUART DIES IN NORFOLK

Lieutenant Stuart resigned his commission in the United States army and threw in his lot with Virginia. Colonel Cooke, his daughter, then the mother of two sons, and her husband met in Washington, and the two soldiers bade farewell, each with a prayer on his lips that they would never meet in battle.

The young mother returned to her home in northern Virginia to wait and pray that her father and husband would not cross swords out where the war was raging. Time after time as the conflict swept across northern Virginia she would follow in the outskirts, and often she and her husband would meet on the fringe of battle.

In the last months of the war, when the struggling armies of the confederacy were fighting with their backs to the wall, and Stuart came to be one of the strong arms of the winning cause, he led his men one day in a dash around the wings of the opposing forces.

Shot by Blue-Clad Troops.
Suddenly a blue uniformed cavalier, whose horse had been shot from under him in the tempestuous fighting, blazed away at General Stuart with a revolver. The bullet tore a gasping wound in the general's breast. He was taken to Richmond. A message was sent to his wife, but while she was hastening to his side over the interminable miles that lay between, the plumed cavalier passed away.

At the close of the war, the gallant cavalier's widow bravely turned her face from the past to the future. She established a fashionable school for girls at Staunton and most of her pupils were daughters of Confederate soldiers of Virginia and other southern states. She had resided here with her son-in-law, R. Page Walker, for 50 years. Her only surviving son is Captain J. E. B. Stuart, U. S. A. retired, New York city.

Funeral services will be conducted at the residence of Mr. Walker Saturday morning at 10.45 o'clock. The body will be forwarded to Richmond for burial in Hollywood cemetery.

About $1,000,000 was expended on Saskatchewan roads during 1912, government reports indicate. The two principal items of expense in this connection were road gang wages, $309,000; contracts, numbering 1,052, $445,000. Approximately 755 miles were constructed last year by the government.

JESUP PARTY GIVES WELCOME TO FINNS IN WAYNE COUNTY

Jesup, Ga., May 10.—(Special.) Two hundred Jesup citizens, headed by a special committee from the live board of trade of the town, today made a special visit to the Finnish colony recently established in Wayne county, at Fairfield, postoffice McKinnon, where half a hundred families of Finns are revolutionizing the old pine fields into a garden spot.

The visitation was for the purpose of expressing for Jesup and Wayne county the cordial feeling of the people to these worthy, industrious settlers and let them know that the people welcome such additions to the productive population.

The delegation visited the farm of the co-operative colony, the cattle pens, the chicken runs, the sweet potato house, the homes and the school and community bath houses. The management of the colony expressed its real delight at having the native neighbors visit the place.

The medal of honor, which is awarded by congress for unusual bravery, is a five-pointed star bearing a medallion of Minerva, and the inscription, "United States of America," with a laurel wreath surrounding by the word "Valor." The medal dates from the days of the civil war, and is one of the most highly prized military decorations.

Swimming Pools In Atlanta Will Open on May 19

One-Piece, White and Silk Bathing Suits Are Barred by Committee.

Public swimming pools in six municipal parks of Atlanta will be officially opened Saturday afternoon, May 19, with appropriate exercises, it was announced Thursday by L. L. Wallis, general manager of parks.

Band concerts under the direction of Clint Barber, well-known local musical conductor, will feature the openings at Piedmont and Grant parks. Mr. Barber was unanimously elected bandmaster of city parks by the park committee at a meeting held Thursday. He has held this position for several years.

Mr. Wallis declared that he was anticipating one of the most successful seasons ever experienced locally since the swimming pools were made a part of the recreational features in local parks. The pools in Piedmont, Grant, Oakland City, Mabry, Mosley and Washington parks, the last named for negroes, are being drained and placed in sanitary condition.

At its meeting Thursday the park board adopted resolutions providing

JITNEY DRIVERS ORGANIZE TO FIGHT BOND ORDINANCE

Approximately 200 jitney drivers of Atlanta assembled in Grant park Thursday morning and organized under the title of the Jitney Bus Operators' association of Atlanta to fight the ordinance passed by council recently providing for indemnity bonds of $1,000 on all jitneys. An injunction proceeding to ascertain the legality of the ordinance is now pending in superior court.

Former Mayor James L. Key spoke against the terms of the ordinance and offered a solution to the drivers, suggesting that they patronize some gasoline company that would be willing to sign their bonds of $1,000.

The following officers were elected: Sam F. Schlessinger, president; H. C. Wilkinson, vice president; Mrs. H. D. Moss, the only woman jitney driver in the city, secretary, and Dr. E. L. Franklin, treasurer.

A petition was sent to Mayor Sims, requesting him to call a special meeting of council to grant them permission to operate without the bonds until the courts have determined the legality of the ordinance. Mayor Sims stated he would announce his intentions later in the week.

the type of bathing suits to be worn in the public pools. The resolutions prohibit one-piece, silk, or white suits. All suits must be of the two-piece type with the upper part worn outside the lower.

Barbecue's Fine, But Lacks Flavor Found in Sillabub

Wherefore Reporter Mourns as He Gnaws Luscious Meats Provided.

BY RALPH T. JONES

This has been a week of strange education and weird experience, for a more or less hard-boiled guy. Tuesday night I sillabubbed with clubwomen and magazine women and society editors. Thursday noon I barbecued with the same crowd and more. But, confidentially, the barbecue lacked that flavor found in the sillabub. The only thing available was high-beer and its wasn't "high" enough to claim any other qualities than wetness.

But at that, it is quite an experience to watch four or five hundred normally dignified leaders of women's club work drinking beer from bottles and gnawing the bones of barbecued pig—said bones held tightly gripped in manicured fingers.

Will Discuss Barbecue

These hundreds of clubwomen, here from every strata in the union to attend the mid-biennial council of their general federation, are going to have a lot to talk about when they get back home again, and gather around the peaceful stoves of the clubhouses to discuss, gossip and comment upon their Atlanta visit. And not the least of their subject matters will be this barbecue, given at the Druid Hills club.

To most of them, a Georgia "cure" was a new experience. They went out filled with curiosity and appetite and left filled with roast pork, roast lamb, Brunswick stew, bottled near beer, soft drinks in general, and the rest of the trimmings. Also filled, be it said, with gratitude to the fate which had led them at last to this gastronomic institution.

It is nearly impossible to give any personal touches to a story about an occasion when hundreds of women sat or stood beside long tables and revelled in "cure." One or two, however, clamor for comment. Here goes:

Personal Touches.

One popular visitor, who is now known to Atlanta by her first name and the prefix "Cousin,"—prelaxed because she has won the title which is only bestowed as an accolade of affection—forgot all about that distressing feminine problem of excess weight and ate until she had won a whole lot more of our admiration. At night, it is reported, she sent a defiant telegram to her doctor—

"Ate a pound of roast pork at one sitting today. And loved it."

Another lady, new to southern entertainment of this character, said not a word until the feast was drawing to a close. A group of negro singers were harmonizing fifty yards away from her. As the minor strains of "Gwine to play all 'round God's heaven" floated to her ears, she asked "What's that?" "Negro spirituals," answered her nearest neighbor.

"Spirituals, huh," she grunted. (Yes she did, even if it isn't polite. Nobody can help grunting after that much barbecue.) "Seems to me anything spiritual is out of place at a feed like this."

Speaking of the negro singers, they drew crowds of the visitors, to most of whom their singing was something entirely new. Fred Houser is credited with bringing them out and, if he did, he pulled just one more good stunt.

ATLANTA PEOPLE EAT LEAN MEAT. STATISTICS SHOW

Atlanta people seem to be making an effort to grow "lean," according to statistics. This may not seem to be the case when the amount of fats consumed by Atlanta's population nearly is considered. The consumption amounts to 9,334,000 pounds per year. This means 46.5 pounds for each person.

In contrast with other cities, this is a small ratio. The people of Little Rock, Ark., show a per capita consumption of about four times this amount. Even Birmingham, Ala., with climate and other conditions very similar to our own, consumes 21 pounds of fat for each inhabitant per year.

Above figures were compiled by F. M. Barnes, head of the edible oils and fats division of the Proctor & Gamble company, of New York.

Continue Inquiry Into Cheek's Death Until This Morning

Inquiry into the sudden death Thursday of J. T. Cheek, 65, city stocade employee, which was begun Thursday evening at 6 o'clock, by Coroner Paul Boneloo, was continued until this morning, due to the absence of an important witness.

Mr. Cheek was found dead in his room at 5 Mollie street, where he had been boarding with Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Barnett. Mrs. Barnett's little girl, Nellie, was the first to discover his death.

He was last seen alive by Mr. Barnett about 6 o'clock Thursday morning, when he carried breakfast into Mr. Cheek's room, who complained that he was not feeling well.

The body was removed to the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son, where the inquest is being held, there being no eye-witnesses to the death.

SWEATERS AWARDED TO 5 AT OGLETHORPE

Name Students Maintaining Highest Average in Studies During Year.

Five students at Oglethorpe university have won the coat of arms sweater awarded each year to students at the university who have maintained a scholastic average of more than 93 per cent for five consecutive terms.

Winners announced by the faculty were J. O. Henderson, of Jonesboro; Joel B. Kersey, of Newnan; L. G. Pfefferkorn, of Gainesville; Al G. Smith, of Waculla, Fla., and Miss Gladys Crisler, of Norcross. Miss Crisler, who recently distinguished herself as an author and actress with the Oglethorpe players, is the second girl in the history of the institution to win the coat of arms sweater.

The 25 students at the university who made the best average during the winter term have been announced as follows:

A. P. Harden, Atlanta, and Al G. Smith, Waculla, Fla., 96; J. O. Henderson, Jonesboro; R. F. McCormack, Jr., Atlanta; F. M. Boswell, Greensboro, and J. B. Kersey, Newnan, 95; L. G. Pfefferkorn, Gainesville, 95; C. W. O'Neal, Chipley; Miss Christine Gore, Atlanta; J. M. McKelvin, Washington; Murray M. Copeland, Danbury; Miss Gladys Crisler, Norcross, and J. D. Chestnut, Doraville, 94; B. H. Vincent, Kingston; J. Marion Stafford, Griffin; C. P. Reynolds, Madison; Nelson Burton, Social Circle, and Miss Mattie White, Kellam, Atlanta, 93 or more; Otis Jackson, Atlanta; R. O. Brown, Griffin; R. A. Martin, Florence; Miss Grace Mason, Atlanta; Mr. Cobb, Lawler, S. C.; S. J. Milton, Atlanta; P. E. Hoyt, Atlanta; H. P. Robertson, Lithonia; W. DeMauren Ingram, Tallahassee; L. H. Wyatt, Franklin, 92 or more; George E. Taylor, Villa Rica, and E. C. Ray, Biloxi, Miss., more than 91.

The report of the registrar shows the general average of the baseball squad of the university to have been only one point below 80 per cent, and of the 24 men, only one failed to make the 70 per cent necessary to pass.

The difference between the dormitory and day students at the university during the past term was shown to have been less than 1 point. The relative standing of the four classes was shown to have been: Senior, sophomore, freshman and junior.

PROBING INCOME OF SHERIFF HELD ON BOOZE CHARGE

Investigation of the income during the last seven years of Sheriff E. S. Garner, of Lawrenceville, who was recently indicted for alleged conspiracy to violate the prohibition law and who is at liberty under bond of $1,000, was begun by Thomas E. Stone, chief legal adviser of the United States internal revenue department, Thursday.

Sheriff Garner was ordered to appear at the internal revenue office on an order by Judge Robert H. Erwin, who is presiding for Judge Samuel H. Sibley, after three banks at Lawrenceville were ordered to produce statement of the sheriff's bank accounts during that period. The object of the investigation is to determine the status of Sheriff Garner's income tax liabilities since 1917.

SOUTHERN PROUD OF SAFETY RECORD MADE DURING YEAR

Figures just compiled by the safety department of the Southern railway system show that a high degree of safety for passengers was accomplished during the year 1922 when the Southern handled a total of 17,688,905 passengers without a single fatality to any passenger as the result of an accident to a train or negligence on the part of the railway.

A total of 177,084 passenger trains were operated during the year and the average distance traveled by each passenger was 62.17 miles. Had one passenger ridden the entire distance that these passengers were carried, he would have traveled more than 44,000 times the distance around the earth.

Four passengers were killed as the result of their own acts in violation of the safety rules established for their protection. Of these, two fell from moving trains, one attempted to board a moving train and fell under it, and one jumped through the window of the coach in which he was riding.

"These figures," says a statement issued by the safety department of the Southern, "show that, while the Southern has attained a remarkable degree of efficiency in protecting the passengers who ride in its trains, no refinement of protective features can insure the safety of persons who carelessly or deliberately violate the common laws of safety and the rules which have been established for their protection."

The train, as usual, crawled along—on know the line—and then stopped dead. "Conductor," shouted a passenger, "have I got out and pick some flowers?" "Afraid you won't find many about here," said the conductor, good naturedly. "Oh, there'll be heaps of 'em," commented the jovial one. "I've brought a package of seeds!"—Pathfinder.

California Prisoner Denies Residence In State of Georgia

Barrett, at the Folsom prison, Repressa, Cal., stating that a detainee has been filed for him at the prison by the Georgia authorities. Barrett denies that he has ever been in Georgia and asserts that there is some mistake as he could not be wanted in this state on any charge.

Governor Hardwick will address the lawyers' club of Atlanta at a dinner which will be held in the breakfast room of the Kimball house at 6 o'clock tonight. The governor has not announced his subject.

The lawyers' club will observe its first anniversary on June 8, at which time new officers will be elected. Present officers are Guy Parker, president; J. C. Davis, vice president, and Will G. Moore, secretary-treasurer.

NON-APPEARANCE IN COUNCIL ROOM BRINGS $4 FINE

Failure to appear on a summons before the police committee of council, caused J. H. Tommie, 23, of 22 Stonewall street, to be fined $4 in police court Thursday.

Tommie was arrested by Chairman Jesse W. Armistead, of the police committee, who prosecuted the case. Tommie, it is said, was a material witness for Officer T. J. Smith, 210 Campbellton road, against whom charges were preferred following a misunderstanding he had with neighbors.

In assessing the fine Recorder Johnson cautioned Tommie against ignoring in the future subpoenas from the police committee.

Tax System Discussed.
The other resolution declared that the association believed that the present taxation system of Georgia is antiquated and unsatisfactory, and recommended it co-operate with the members of the general assembly in the formulation of a fair and equitable plan of tax revision. The resolution did not favor any particular plan of taxation, but declared that it was the sense of the convention that "any scheme of taxation adopted should contemplate the raising of revenue sufficient to support the state and its institutions, with the burden so distributed as to be fair to all and oppressive to none."

Outstanding speeches of the convention were delivered by Mr. Baker, Senator Walter F. George, James A. Hollomon, associate editor of The Constitution, and George Betts, president of the Georgia association. Other speakers included W. P. Lemon, of the Georgia Forestry association; Mr. Land, Georgia vocational educational director, and Frank Weldon, secretary of the Taxpayer's league. Governor-elect Clifford Walker was scheduled to speak but was prevented because of illness.

Mr. Hollomon Speaks.
In his address, Mr. Hollomon expressed his opposition to any proposition of taxation that would exempt new industries from paying taxes. "No worth-while new industry," declared Mr. Hollomon, "is seeking exemption from taxation. All any worth-while industry asks is a fair, equitable and stable system of state taxation."

Mr. Hollomon outlined to the manufacturers his plan of taxation that created considerable Georgia-wide interest when it was first presented to the City club some weeks ago. He made a plea for a classified profit tax on the basis that a system that would distribute taxation equitably would increase the state revenue and lower tax rates.

"Taxation must be fair," said Mr.

Middle Georgia Cotton Suffers From Cold Spell

Northern and Southern Parts of State Not Affected, Says Pettet.

Greatest damage to the Georgia cotton crop as a result of the cold in the last three days, was done in the middle section of the state, according to Z. R. Pettet, local statistician of the United States department of agriculture, who announced Friday that his report was as yet incomplete, and that he would give out figures Tuesday showing the extent of the damage in Georgia and the southeast.

Cotton in the middle section is in an exceedingly vulnerable stage of growth, Mr. Pettet explained, while in the northern section the greater portion has not yet sprouted through the ground. In the extreme southern section the cold was not so severe, and the cotton was better able to withstand the onslaught of the chilling winds.

Mr. Pettet stated that he did not think that the damage would prove to be very serious, but was unable to make any definite estimate as the weather is still cool for the season, and reports were continuing to pour into the office.

Latest reports received from Georgia Fruit exchange state that the damage to the peach crop in the state was negligible. A more detailed report will be made by J. G. Carlyle, manager of the Georgia Fruit exchange, upon his return from Macon, where he went Thursday to attend the Centennial exposition, and inquire into the progress of the fruit crop.

Fair and warmer Friday is the forecast issued by C. F. von Herrmann, with the statement that the mercury would continue to rise from an early hour in the morning until about 3 o'clock in the afternoon. The nights will remain moderately cool through Saturday, and each night will be warmer than the one preceding.

The mercury dropped to 40 degrees Wednesday night to the second time this week, but Thursday was several degrees warmer than the day before, he said.

Clear weather prevailed throughout the south, according to the weather bulletin, and a light frost fell in middle and northern Georgia, northern Alabama, and North Carolina. The storm area that caused the disturbance is fast passing over the north Atlantic.

The navy department has planned important gunnery exercises at the mouth of the Potomac river in June, when the 16-inch guns on the battleship Maryland will be thoroughly tested. This will be the first time these guns, the largest on any American ship, will be used. The shells, each weighing 2,045 pounds, will be driven through the air by the explosion of 500 pounds of powder.

Marshall Ney, executed by the French government, died crying "Long Live France!"

The American corn crop average yield for the last ten years has been 2,521,000,000 bushels.

Hollomon, "and to be fair it must be equitably distributed. It should not exceed in the aggregate the legitimate demands of a progressive government, but it should be ample to provide for all government functioning, so that the benefits that revert back to the taxpayer in education, construction of highways, the administration of public services, the protection of society, and similar things, should not be abridged by reason of inadequacy of funds."

"Tax burdens in Georgia should be reduced, inequalities by which some are exempt from taxes, should be eliminated, and taxation should be made an investment instead of a burden. This can be done by a moderate income tax graduated in rates, with the provision that there shall be no double taxation. Properties for state taxes should be classified so that money and prima facie par valuations should be taxed not over one mill. The maximum real estate tax should not be over two mills. All injustice and inequality should be eliminated and above all the taxation system should be fair and stable."

Mr. Weldon on Stand.
Mr. Weldon also emphasized the importance of a fair and stable system of taxation. He pointed out that the manufacturers of the importance of forestry and forest preservation and rehabilitation of Georgia industry. He pointed out that the rapid cutting of Georgia forests and the lack of reforestation, together with the yearly fires, was a serious menace to the state and the south. He declared that by 1930 the pine forests of the south would exceed little, if any, the timber needs of the south, and that it steps were not taken for forest protection and reforestation, the entire nation would have to depend upon the last great stands of natural timber along the Pacific coast.

The morning session of the convention was devoted to a discussion of the relation of agriculture and industry, and the necessity for measures to rehabilitate Georgia agriculture in order "to promote and protect Georgia industry."

Senator George Speaks.
Senator George declared that the hope of agriculture rested on the increase of manufacturing and industrial centers that would consume the food raised on Georgia farms and convert the raw materials produced by agriculture into finished products. He pointed out that the Georgia farmer could not ship his products to the distant northern and eastern centers of consumption and compete successfully with the farmers closer to them, and that if the farmer is prosperous he must find his market closer home.

In the course of his speech, the senator declared that he was "not afraid that a branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston will be established in Cuba. If this were effected and carried through, it would destroy the federal reserve banking system itself since it would place banks in the same competition with each other that existed before the federal reserve system was adopted."

Farm Prosperity.
In his address Mr. Betts pointed out that farm prosperity did not depend on cotton, but upon crop diversification, and upon "hogs, cows, and hens on every one of the 316,000 farms of Georgia. The state could be prosperous in agriculture," he said, "if it never raised another bale of cotton."

Mr. Betts urged the business men and manufacturers of Georgia to use their efforts to build up "a greater agricultural as well as a greater industrial Georgia." He urged that new and better methods of farming be encouraged and that the country banks extend productive credit to the farmers of their sections. He declared that agriculture is industry's biggest customer, and that profits on farms create capital which is essential to industrial development.

Mr. Baker highly praised the recommendations of Mr. Betts, that Georgia agriculture be rehabilitated and urged the manufacturers to aid in that movement. He endorsed diversification of crops and declared "that the farmer who raises cotton exclusively can no longer make a profit."

"Be it further resolved, That, in our opinion, the situation may be bettered if the best element of the white people work together to eliminate, so far as may be, any injustice done to the negroes, and to secure for all of them good living conditions and fair treatment, and to show to them the fact that careful surveys show that they are in reality far better off in the south than in any other section of the nation."

BROADWAY SHOWS LEAN TO VARIETY

Presentations. Comprise Vaudeville Program
Ranging From Amateurs
to Regular Drama.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

New York, May 10.—Lacking only a girly show to fill out the bill, this week's presentations on Broadway comprised a vaudeville program. There were amateurs, a poodle, a revival of "The Rivals," a negro dramatic company and a regulation, wronged-woman drama, drumming up an endowment of sympathy for a "gal" who may be had up most any day for shooting a wretch.

At this time, when almost every performance breaks or strains a record of some sort, the records committee is searching the files to determine whether this week didn't break the international six-day record, not for quality or quantity of new amusement, but for diversity.

The amateurs begin in the gloaming at the Nora Hayes and busily all the night they recite with gestures at the rate of four one-act productions per session before a committee of the Drama League which hides, unknown, in the audience. The Drama League is being conducted by the Drama League for the Helasos cup. The results will not be known for some time, but there will be only one heat. Thus there will be no spectacle of the Great Neck players, of Great Neck, L. I., orating their selection, "A Thousand Generations and One," against a simultaneous recitation of "The Revolt of the Mummies" by the Huguonot players, of New Rochelle. The point scoring system is very technical, but it is understood that real tears count for a grand slam.

Anonymous Poodle.

The Poodle, appearing anonymously because he comes from an old French family who objected to his going on the stage, was seen in William J. Locke's comedy-drama, "The Mountebank." After this engagement he should be content to settle down in some nice suburban house and raise a family, for he flopped badly in his great emotional climax of the premiere. "The Mountebank" is Locke's story of a clown who goes to the war with the British, becomes a major general, wins a titled lady and then is demoralized with a psychological bang. He returns to the only thing he can do for a living, which is clowning, and has made up his mind to be game and return to his old vaudeville love also. But she spares him that last touch of normalcy by taking up with another vaudeville and there he is left.

The Poodle, vaudeville partner of "The Mountebank," got his cues badly and barked in his dead-dog scene. The Equity players of the Actors' union had not done much until a week when they revived "The Rivals." Their greatest achievement had been, in fact, a passive one, in out-living the counter propaganda company of the producing managers, which two weeks ago produced "As You Like It" and then disbanded in confusion. The Equity's production of "The Rivals" is a more active play than anything else it had undertaken, and the Equity company, being actors, did it up royal.

Program of Plays.

Raymond O'Neill, a white man, brought from Chicago his Ethiopian Art Theater company of negroes representing all shades of art and complexion from light sulphur to Dixon's soft graphite for copy readers. They are to produce a program of plays, but unfortunately most of these are standard works and give no vent to the peculiar talents of negro actors such as Charles Gilpin showed so resoundingly and unexpectedly in "The Emperor Jones" a couple of years ago.

This week's feature production of the negroes was Oscar Wilde's "Salome" which companies of white actors have failed to do very well. But the thing the colored company did best was a brief curtain-raiser called "The Chip Woman's Fortune," written by Willis Richardson, a negro playwright. This was a story in which they were at home—of an old colored woman who begged nickles and hoarded them against the time when her son should emerge from jail and who, then, at his request, blew it all on a phonograph. The curtain goes down with the negroes warning the boards in a dance to the music of a record from Tin-Pan-Alley.

Wronged Woman Drama.

Finally there was the wronged-woman drama, "For Value Received," reminiscent of many other types of plays but original in its employment of situations that have been seen before. Ethel Clifton, the playwright, presented the sad case of a girl who becomes more than a secretary of an evil-natured and unhealthy author, for, in working with him, collaborating in his work and receiving more abuse than salary. Not really a bad girl, you see, she does this in order that she may educate a younger sister. All this while she loves a young architect who is no paragon of piety himself. But when he learns the relationship he ships away to Paris.

In that emergency the scrivener offers to marry her and you leave the theater expecting to buy an extra issue of the news stands telling the world she just had to shoot him.

Legislators Told Dramatic Story Of Convict Life

Deaths From Allegedly Barbarous Treatment Common, States Woman.

Tallahassee, Fla., May 10.—Deaths from allegedly barbarous treatment were a common occurrence in prison camps maintained by State Senator J. B. Thomas, Mrs. C. C. Franklin told a legislative investigating committee here.

Nine convicts from Baker county died during the past year in Knabb camps, she said. Mrs. Franklin told a dramatic story of the rescue of Paul Revere White, Washington, D. C., from Knabb's convict camp at Tallahassee.

"He looked like a corpse when he was removed from the camp," the witness told the legislators. White was removed from the camp by Sheriff Jones, of Baker county, Mr. Franklin said, after she had complained that he was receiving inhuman treatment.

Prison Supervisor J. B. Thomas, who stated in a report last February that Senator Knabb's convict camps were "human slaughter pens," was called to the stand but did not give any testimony against the senator.

After making the first report, Thomas in a later statement said that conditions in Knabb's camp had been "greatly exaggerated."

Following his testimony the committee passed a resolution recommending that the governor remove Thomas from office.

Senator J. B. Johnson, who opposed the bill for abolition of corporal punishment, which was passed by the senate Tuesday, received a letter Wednesday, warning him that he would receive 100 lashes within 30 days after the legislature adjourns. It was signed by the "justice committee of the Ku Klux Klan."

The latter also mentioned eleven other senators who had been marked for 100 lashes for opposing the measure.

FESTIVAL ASSUMES HUGE PROPORTIONS

con people had re-enacted in pantomime the history of middle Georgia and Macon from prehistoric times up to the founding of Macon in 1823.

The entire student body and faculty of Wesleyan college participated in the magnificent spectacle which opened the afternoon, following the concert by the glee and quartet societies.

It was a pageant in itself, signifying the founding of Wesleyan in 1825 as the first female college in the world. The hundreds of beautiful girls, attired as muses, nymphs and other ethereal beings, seemed almost to float from behind the mass of greenery that formed the living back drop of the stage.

They passed in long, graceful and colorful lines across the stage, led to the strains of soft music from Kaler's band, concealed in a sylvan grove.

As the hundreds of girls, representing nearly every community in Georgia and every state in the union formed in banks of colorful beauty before the stage, a gasp of wonderment went up from the huge audience, followed by the most prolonged burst of handclapping and cheering that had occurred since the pageant opened.

Miss Frances Peabody, of Waycross, as justice, proclaimed in stately pantomime that Wesleyan was in verity the world's oldest female college. Then Miss Ellen Hunt, of Barnesville, a Wesleyan alumna, before Miss Rebekah O'Phant, of Macon, who impersonated the world, to receive the crown in token of her queenship.

The beauty of the scene baffles adequate description.

The glory of the civilization of the old south was recalled from the dusty past in the second episode of the day. The visit in 1844 of Henry Clay was impersonated by the famous author, Harry Stillwell Edwards. Nellie Edwards, the beautiful young granddaughter of the writer and the daughter of Mrs. Nellie Malone Edwards, former Atlanta girl, took the part of John Clay.

Several hundred pretty maids and matrons and an equal number of men, in the colorful dress of the period, formed a gorgeous background for the pantomime. The band played popular airs of the period for a stately dance.

The third episode was a fantasy of Sidney Lanier, the Macon poet, musician and soldier. In it nearly a thousand children took part in eight dancing groups, each group dressed in a different color to represent fairies and flowers. The fairies and flowers first danced in and gambled gracefully on the green while Sidney Lanier sat on the stage, pen in hand, dreaming of beauty.

Then came the tiger lilies of war, driving the happy flowers of peace away and Sidney Lanier went up to seize the musket and do battle for his state. Robert Lanier Anderson, a descendant of the poet, played his part.

Macon's Part in War.

The fourth episode was a thrilling scene of Macon's part in the war between the states. It depicted the rallying of the Florida rifles and Macon volunteers to enter the confederate army. The 122nd infantry of national guard, attired in Confederate uniforms, formed the two Confederate units.

Mrs. William T. Anderson, wife of the editor of The Macon Telegraph and niece of Mrs. Thomas Hardeman, who made with her own hands the first flag of the Confederacy, played the part of Mrs. Hardeman. She presented the flag to the commander of the Florida Rifles and the soldiers marched away, with the cheers of massed hundreds of men and women dressed in the fashions of 1860.

The simulated cheers of the actors were caught up with tremendous enthusiasm by the vast audience and for a period of minutes the music of the band was entirely drowned out by the applause.

The final episode of the second day depicted the visit of Jefferson Davis to Macon in 1877. T. D. Tinsley impersonated President Davis. With him in his stately coach were Mrs. J. Marshall Johnson, Mrs. James H. Blount and Mrs. T. O. Chestney, as ladies of the day.

Seldom, if ever, has a president of the United States in the flesh received such an ovation as did this make-believe president of the long-disbanded Confederacy. While the band played on bravely the tunes of the sixties, Bonnie Blue Flag, Dixie, and others, the great crowd arose to its feet and cheered as lustily as though they were all good Confederates together in the days when the stars and bars led men through Shiloh and Gettysburg.

Color was added to the reception of Jefferson Davis by the appearance of a dozen real Confederate veterans, including former Governor Nat E. Harris, Colonel C. A. Wiley and Major T. O. Chestney on the stage as a reception committee. The old soldiers were applauded until the woods rang.

Final Episodes.

The history of Macon in pageantry since the end of reconstruction days up to the present time and with a poetic vision of the future will be enacted in the final part of the pageant Friday. Episodes will include the founding of Mercer university, founding of the public schools, the Camp Harris period of military activity and the world war. The participants in these episodes will be largely drawn from the ranks of the people who really lived them a few years ago.

The institutions and organizations parade, which was the impressive opening event of the day, is another of the features of Macon's birthday party which invites the use of superlatives and which justifies acclaim as a record smasher.

The monster procession actually included more people in its line of march than the entire population of any one of nearly a hundred Georgia counties. Marching at a brisk rate of speed and without a single halt it took an hour and forty-five minutes to pass a given point.

Although the program designated it as two parades, one of white people and the other of negroes, it moved with only a break of a city block between and formed in reality two sections of one parade. Nine white bands marched, playing briskly, at intervals in the first section, and two negro bands, one from Fort Benning and the other from a negro school for the blind, played for the second section.

The first section "was roughly subdivided into groups of city officials and employees, religious organizations, educational institutions, philanthropic organizations and institutions, fraternal organizations, patriotic organizations and civic clubs.

The entire student bodies and faculties of Wesleyan and Mercer were in the line of march or on the floats. All the grammar school children of Macon marched, all Lanier high school and members of all civic, military, social, fraternal, patriotic and other organized groups marched behind their own floats.

Wesleyan Wins Prize.

On the Wesleyan float, which won the grand prize, were the central figures who later appeared in the pageant. All schools wore their school colors, making the line of march a stream of vivid hues.

Friday the program will be opened by a procession of commerce and industry, in which all commercial enterprises and many civic enterprises of the city and section will be represented by floats. The parade, according to the schedule prepared Thursday night, will require more than an hour and a half to pass a given point, moving at a scheduled speed of three miles an hour. The pageant will be concluded in the afternoon. The downtown section will be thrown open in a street carnival Friday night.

Winners of prizes in the parade Thursday were as follows:

Grand prize, Wesleyan college. Prizes awarded to classes are as follows:

Band, Al Sihab Temple of the Shrine; school, Alexander No. 2; college, Mercer university; orphanage, Methodist Orphans' Home; women's organization, Red Cross; civic club, Rotary club; girls' organization, Girl Scouts; fraternal order, Fraternal Order of Eagles; military units, Macon volunteers.

A silver pitcher was awarded for the grand prize. The class prizes are silver loving cups.

John J. McKay was chairman of the institutions and organizations parade and the judges were Mrs. Sanders Walker, Mrs. H. C. King, Judge W. H. Barrett, T. E. Ryals and Bruce C. Jones.

Luxury For Sore Feet

Skin specialists have discovered that painful, perspiring and swollen feet with corns, bunions and ingrowing nails are all caused by germs which grow in the pores of the skin, causing decay of the entire, irritation, redness, eczema, inflammation and odor. These germs are instantly destroyed by Eucapine, the antiseptic, healing salve, applied after bathing at bedtime. It draws out all the inflammation and soreness before morning, destroys the germs and restores healthy condition to the skin and nails.

It is explained that ingrowing nails do not really grow down into the flesh, as supposed, but that the flesh, being swollen, is pressed up over the nail. The Eucapine takes out the swelling and inflammation, destroys the germs and the trouble disappears. Corns and bunions gradually disappear in the same manner by removing the cause.

Eucapine is the modern scientific treatment for pain, inflammation and germ infections of the skin and mucous membranes and has many daily uses in every home. Ask your druggist to send you a family jar, price 50 cents.—(adv.)

When Run-down or Recovering from a Prostrating Illness, Here's Good Advice

Atlanta, Ga.—"During a time of the 'flu' epidemic, in a mining town in Tennessee, I found it necessary to close my store, that I might act as nurse. There were a great many cases there at that time. We found Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to be the best tonic for convalescent patients. They all gained strength rapidly on this treatment.

government ownership of the carriers at the general session of the United States Chamber of Commerce Thursday.

W. N. Doak, senior vice-president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, the spokesman for the unions, stated that one man in every three would be on the government payroll if the United States took over the railroads and $20,000,000 would be added to the national budget.

Doak appealed to the prominent business men to whom he spoke to give the carriers adequate financial support and called upon the bankers to stop the speculation in railroads. The railroad union official scoffed at the idea of a general railroad strike and declared that relations between employees and employers were never better.

Against Ownership.

Walter W. Head, first vice-president of the American Bankers' association, stated that he and the interests he represented were against the government ownership of railroads. He expressed the opinion that the majority of the citizens of the country were also opposed to federal ownership of the carriers.

Head stated that there was a general feeling on the part of investors that the carriers were subjected to too much regulation and interference. The railroad problem from the viewpoint of the farmer was outlined to the delegates by O. E. Bradford, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Farmers' Interest.

In pointing out the farmers' interest in transportation, Bradford said, "of the annual production on the American farms of somewhere between eight and ten billion dollars worth of products, somewhere between eight and ten billion dollars' worth of those products must be transported from the farm to some other point. That, in a nutshell, is the farmer's interest in transportation, something like ten billion dollars' worth of products a year must get across the country from his farm to some other point."

Bradford said the farmers had to pay freight two ways—one on the produce he sent out and the other on the products he needed on the farm. "It is the matter of high costs of everything which the farmer has to buy relatively, that is driving many of our intelligent young men from the farms to the cities."

U. S. CONCESSIONS HELD "DISASTROUS"

adopted by the resolutions committee on Wednesday, had been amended before it was read to the delegates yesterday, and, according to an explanation made by Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, president, to newspaper men, the amendment was for the purpose of making clear that the federation would indorse, if anything, the general principle, but not any specific proposal before the American people. This course, she said, would be taken in order that any appearance of partisanship might be avoided.

The resolution reported Wednesday, in accordance with this idea, was changed to read "indorsing all practical measures and movements tending toward international understanding."

Later the guests were entertained at afternoon tea at Emory university, the guests of the Emory Woman's club. A tea was also given at the U. D. C. chapter house.

Program at Night.

Thursday night's program opened with the singing of half a dozen numbers by the Yarnab Chanters, famous singing organization of the Yarnab Shrine. This great male choir was secured, according to Mrs. Marx Oberdorfer, director of music for the federation, by reason of the fact that Mrs. Charles Chalmers, who has arranged the musical program for this week, has a husband who is a chanter.

Mrs. John Sherman, chairman of applied education, spoke on "Garden week." She told how the creation of gardens was a help for a better community, both in material appearance and in spiritual effect.

She also appealed for garden spots because of their influence upon the character of the growing child.

Turner Jones Speaks.

Turner Jones, of Southern Enterprises, Inc., pleaded for the Better Films Movement. He urged the clubwomen to support passage of laws for the censorship of motion pictures, saying that the good such a law could do was overshadowed by the danger. He said that there was too strong a tendency on the part of the public to think that the whole thing was settled when the law was passed.

Thus lulled into a sense of false security, he said that the control over pictures would be weakened by such a law rather than strengthened.

He told the clubwomen that the picture producers' only desire was to give the public what it wanted and, inasmuch as sixty-five per cent of the audience are women, the future of pictures was in their hands. If they would but make their wants known, Mrs. Florence Duryear told of the work being done by America for the restoration of the Lusitania university in Belgium. She asked the clubwomen for their support in this work, telling how the greatest need for the growing generations in Europe today was education.

Congressman Upshaw, of the Fifth Georgia district, was the final speaker on the night program.

Other resolutions introduced were: To indorse a selective immigration law, providing for the admission of immigrants on a percentage based on the census of 1890.

To reaffirm the stand taken at the Chautauqua biennial concerning law enforcement, particularly enforcement of the eighteenth amendment, the resolution calling upon all officers and citizens to co-operate in the enforcement of all laws.

To indorse the principle of employing prisoners only in the production of commodities for consumption in state institutions and departments, frowning upon their leasing for "profit-making by business interests."

Industrial Home Indorsed. To indorse the better homes movement and better homes week from June 4 to 11.

To indorse the plan calling for the establishment of a federal industrial reform school for young men first offenders and for an industrial home for women.

To indorse the adoption of an amendment to the constitution that would authorize congress to enact another child labor law, two such laws having been declared unconstitutional by the United States supreme court.

To request that newspapers give memory contests in the interests of better hymns in the Sunday school.

Drug Menace Pointed.

To affirm the federation's support of the bill before congress providing for extension of home economics work.

To indorse the home demonstration work in the various states, calling for an agent in every county, if possible.

The resolution on the drug traffic follows: "Whereas, the evils resulting from the illicit peddling of drugs is a growing menace to the youth of our nation, reaching even to children of school age, and;

"Whereas, this addiction undermines the health and morals of the community; therefore,

"He resolved, That the General Federation of Women's clubs in council assembled, authorizes the president of the General Federation of Women's clubs to appoint a committee to secure immediate and accurate information regarding the extent of this evil, the means being used to combat it, and that the federation use this information as the basis for a vigorous campaign in co-operation with other agencies to wipe out this national evil."

Noted Sculptor Speaks.

Gutzon Borglum addressed the federation Thursday morning, telling of plans for carrying the great Confederate memorial on Stone Mountain, which the delegates and visitors were to visit Thursday afternoon, following the barbecue at noon at the Druid Hills Golf club.

Mrs. Albert H. Hildreth spoke to the interests of the organization of past presidents of the federation. Other business features and addresses occupied the morning session.

Mrs. Winter, discussing the world court resolution, explained that while she personally favored American participation in a world court she would not have the resolution so worded that no charge of partisan politics could be brought against the federation. The resolution, as agreed on by the committee yesterday did not mention French Harding or his proposal, but some leaders informally pointed out that the recommendation of the president along this line is the only one before the country.

Session of Friday.

Friday morning's session will be taken up with the voting on resolutions and hearing of reports from headquarters, under the chairmanship of Miss Lida Harford, director. Mrs. Winter will speak on "Supporting the Headquarters."

Friday afternoon there will be an address on "Juvenile Delinquency and the Recreation Problem" by Eugene T. Lies, social representative of the Playground and Recreation association of America.

Friday night's session at the Tabernacle at 8:15 o'clock will be featured by an address by Rev. James E. Freeman, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, of Washington, D. C., on "Dominant Voices," United States Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, originally been on the program, but a sore throat has forced him to cancel all engagements for the next few weeks.

The council will end its sessions with a number of executive meetings of the directors, state presidents and executive committee on Saturday.

Friday's Program.

The program for Friday is as follows: FRIDAY, MAY 11. Morning Session, 9:15. Mrs. Winter, presiding.

Community singing. Business. Voting on resolutions. Question box.

Headquarters—Mrs. Jennings, first vice president; Mrs. Perham, second vice president; Miss Lida Harford, director; "Supporting the Headquarters," Mrs. T. G. Winter.

DANGER SIGNALS OF INDIGESTION

The Disease That Strikes Like Lightning.

Beware of indigestion—the disease that kills more people and kills them quicker than any other. This warning, by physicians, is particularly applicable this season of the year, when your system "lets down" in tone and vigor with the first approach of warm weather.

What are the warnings that nature gives you of the approach of indigestion? The medical books tell us: 1. Gas, which means that your food is fermenting instead of digesting. 2. A feeling of fullness or oppression in the region of the stomach after eating. This means that the gas has ballooned your stomach and is pressing up against your heart and lungs. 3. A dull, lazy feeling, which means that you are not getting nourishment from what you are eating. 4. Restlessness, unrefreshing sleep, which means that the poisons of indigestion are disturbing your brain and nerves. 5. Sometimes, pain and fluttering around the heart, though this symptom may come later.

Don't take chances with indigestion—you are too apt to lose. If you have had any of the symptoms mentioned above, get your digestive organs to work at once with Dan-Nax, the greatest prescription that was ever written for a digestive tonic. Dan-Nax immediately aids and assists in every one of your digestive organs, including the stomach, liver and bowels. Dan-Nax makes your digestion "perfect and complete." You feel its helpful effect from the very first dose. Get a bottle of Dan-Nax today at any drug store. Dan-Nax is so much superior to any other remedy for indigestion that the manufacturers have instructed every druggist to refund the price if you do not get relief, so it costs you nothing if you are not delighted with results. Delay might be dangerous, get Dan-Nax today.—(adv.)

SAYING GOODBYE.—Finally, brethren, farewell. Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you.—2 Cor. 13:11.

CRISSINGER'S VIEW.

Regarding the proposal of Governor W. P. G. Harding, of the Boston Federal Reserve bank, that that institution be permitted to open a branch in Cuba, the Washington correspondent of The Constitution says:

"Governor Crissinger, of the federal reserve board, will uphold the claims of Atlanta to the control of a bank under the system that it is proposed to establish in Cuba. Crissinger has made no public announcement as to his position, but officials in the employment of his confidence declare he will never tolerate the control of the Cuban federal reserve bank by the authorities of the Boston district."

This means that the sound and unanswerable position of the Atlanta Federal Reserve bank, and of banks throughout the sixth reserve district, that Cuba's geographical position gives to the sixth district her federal reserve business, is accepted as logical by the chairman of the board; and by the same token it probably means that the application of the Boston bank will be denied.

The fact is, as has been pointed out before, Governor Harding, head of the Boston reserve bank and the predecessor of Governor Crissinger as chairman of the federal reserve board, recognized when holding the latter's position that reserve business in Cuba belonged to the Atlanta bank by reason of the regional system provided in the federal reserve act. To that end he personally sought congressional authority for the building of a $400,000 branch of the Atlanta reserve bank in Jacksonville in order to facilitate the circulation of reserve notes in Cuba.

It was only after Governor Harding had left the general board, by reason of expiration of his term to which he was not reappointed, and became the head of the Boston bank that he reversed his own position, and sought to encroach upon the Atlanta territory, and grab the Cuban business.

If there is a branch federal reserve bank established in Cuba, it should be a branch of the Atlanta bank. If the business is to be handled through a bank in the states it should be handled through the branch of the Atlanta bank in Jacksonville. That is not only logic, but it is the spirit if not the letter of the law.

It is gratifying that Governor Crissinger, who was formerly comptroller of currency, and generally regarded as a sound, safe man, sees it the same way.

WOMEN FOR PEACE!

It has been a matter of sincere interest that the General Federation of Women's Clubs, now meeting in Atlanta for the mid-biennial council, is giving serious consideration to the proposed international court of justice and seems about to endorse such a court as an official resolve on the part of the federation.

It is to be expected that woman, whose thought and purpose in life is constructive as well as idealistic, would give whole-souled endorsement to any plan tending towards the abolishing of international strife and ending for all time, not only the possibility of war, but what is more, the dreadful thing itself.

The most important organized body in the world is the General Federation of Women's Clubs. It represents millions of women, and in representing women, it represents our leisure class, and in representing the leisure class, the class which is informed, is educated and is intelligent, is represented.

That this body should give its endorsement to a world court which shall hasten the day of world peace is to be expected.

It is a significant thing, too, that the federation seems about to declare itself in favor of the world court. Woman's power now is an assured thing in world affairs. It is no trivial matter that these several million women seem about to go on record in favor of this much desired world co-operation. It is a definite outgrowth of their newly acquired power which the vote has given them, an expression of their part in the world as beings who have learned that tears shed over the trenches of those cradled in love need be shed no longer, for now, with the vote in hand, expression can really express and congress will answer these voters.

MOUNTAIN ARTISTS.

There is no auxiliary feature of the meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs in Atlanta that is more interesting, instructive and inspiring than the exhibit of handicraft, the work of the students of the Tallulah Falls Industrial school, which is the property of the Georgia federation.

This exhibit is not only interesting from the standpoint of artistry, but as a means of appraising the possibilities in the boys and girls of the mountains, and as a crying appeal to help in a work that is capable of paying such priceless dividends in human service.

An automobile pilgrimage will leave Atlanta at noon Saturday for the purpose of visiting this school. It is not only hoped that as many delegates to the general federation as possible may make this trip, but that business men of Atlanta and others—any person who can—may go and see the school and the environments, and the children themselves, who are the first and foremost of its resources, and who respond so readily and so promisingly to the cultivation of those who have its interests at heart.

"These mountain children shut up in the hearts of the Appalachians are of the best Anglo-Saxon blood and will repay all that is done for them," wrote Mrs. C. K. Ayer, of Atlanta, who is fifth district chairman for this school; and she wrote wisely and well.

Of course they will. And the strongest appeal before the people of this country is to lift the veil of illiteracy in the mountains, so that the sun that shines on the peaks may reach also into the depths of the valleys.

COBB IS HONORED.

It is a distinctive honor, most worthily bestowed and equally as worthily merited, that has fallen upon C. A. Cobb, editor of the Southern Ruralist, of Atlanta, by his election to the presidency of the American Agricultural Editors' association.

He is the first southerner elected to an important office in this association, which includes a number of the most powerful weekly and monthly periodicals in the United States.

Few if any men in the south are in closer touch with agricultural conditions than Mr. Cobb, and no man is safer or sounder in his views. He is a conservative, dependable, practical man, and his work has been of that constructive, worth-while nature that has won for him such wide recognition.

Editor Cobb is a native of Tennessee and has seen wide and helpful service in agricultural education, and general extension work. He is a good speaker as well as writer, and is a useful and highly esteemed Georgian.

Just From Georgia

BY FRANK L. STANTON

In Memory.
(Isma Dooly, May 11, 1921.)
I.
Love holds you in its tender keep,
Dreaming of you, no more we weep.
It is today as you were here—
The sunlight twinkles and the stars are clear.

II.
You that so calmed the storm and strife,
Led lowlier lives to higher life—
We needs must mourn that you are gone,
And yet your loving work lives on.

The Contended One.
I never am a worry!
'Bout weather, any day;
I wake up and it's winter,
But I dreamed that it was May!

And if the birds ain't singing
'Cause winter hasn't passed,
This thought is comfort bringin':
"They'll sing—they'll sing at last!"

So on my way I go
In springtime, or in snow;
It's a good world where we're livin',
And that's just all I know.

The cold may blight the corn, Madam
And Springtime, at the gate,
May hear the soft flowers saying:
"Our sweetheart comes too late."

But Springtime, in the shadows,
When skies are overcast,
Says to the grievous garden:
"You'll bloom—you'll bloom at last!"

So on my way I go
In springtime, or in snow;
It's a good world where we're livin',
And that's just all I know.

Uncle John's Philosophy.
Here is Uncle John's view of wearing glasses. He is the philosopher of the Excelsior Springs Standard—

"Since I've been wearin' glasses, I command a better view of myself an' my surroundin's, than my naked eye could do. They have broadened my perspective in a kratifin' way—till my neighbors pay attention to most anything I say."

"A feller can't help smilin' when he puts his glasses on, an' beholds his fellow-mortals with their imperfections gone. They used to look so sorry, with so much to criticize. O, it's powerful misleadin' when ye have defective eyes!"

"When the age of wearin' glasses fashins hair of silver gray, you can have yer neighbors stronger, as their fashin's melt away. If we keep our eyes corrected by self-sacrificin' art, it will bring that clearer vision, which endows a nobler heart."

A Note on the Way.
Lifetime is joytime,
But sorrow comes along;
There's a note that mars the music
In the sweet flow of a song.

But we sing along the way,
And glimpse a rainbow's ray,
And neither joy nor sorrow
Ever comes to stay.

The optimistic Crane Chronicle says that "Spring is holding a conference with Business—just around the corner."

May Pray the Storm Off.
(Correspondence Arkadelphia Standard.)
After the bad looking cloud storm night, J. E. Still and R. C. Long were seen digging a storm house on half-way ground between their houses, and after going to church Sunday, don't know whether they will finish it or not.

On the Last Lap.
A correspondent is informed that the verse he asks for appeared in this column, and is as follows:

"After a while
The horse that you bet on
Will make every mile—
After a while!"

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. MINTYRE

New York, May 10.—Thoughts while strolling around New York: The avenue decked for a parade. As strolling, a band. Quaint shops. Jaded cynics. Rare jewels. Glittering windows. The daily worship of false gods.

The Turkish dress came drying out. There's a palace of an admiring millionaire built for a dancer. Now a supper club. And this in the South Seas trying to forget. That gruff traffic again. He always picks on me. And it's mighty skinny pickin'.

A safe going to the twentieth floor. Will I walk under it? Don't be ridiculous. Errand girls. Chic and saucy. Prof. Saur, the weather forecaster. I have an uncle with rheumatism who can't get his foot out of the carriage footman sitting tail.

I distrust door signs that say: "Will return in ten minutes." Middle aged men playing marbles on Fifty-Sixth street. A kid going to New York. Jewish population. One of the largest theatres in the city is on Second-avenue.

Here the plays of the masters are translated into Yiddish. The best seats are to be had for $1 and there is no ticket speculation whatever. The serious intellectual play finds a responsive reception in the Ghetto. The movies have their following, but not so large as the theatres where plays by Shakespeare and Sudermann are presented.

There are two brothers—twins—in New York who are conspicuous for wearing pearl derbies year in and out. Almost every afternoon they walk along Fifth avenue.

On West 44th street there is a small dinky restaurant. Near the MELANCHOLY.

A great grey beard went toiling
Up the hill road,
The village people wept, and cried,
"Some human hearts are burdened
With a load of sorrow."

They wept, apparently in sympathy,
But on the morrow learned
That caps had sacked
A passing bear to find—
Not death—but worse!

A wildcat load of "mountain dew,"
Ah! then the villagers set up
A big boo-hoo!

My frozen heart will never thaw—
I might have stood them cooked raw, I'll bet.

But why in thunder did they raw?
A sensitive beak,
Outraged, must speak.

TAKE IT OFF OR KNOCK IT OFF?
Toiling up the office stairs
I saw business men in pairs,
Members of that envied class
Of wealth.

Thought I, this must be
A fad-making citizenry
Who climb this daily dozen—for health.

They discussed as they went
A matter of grave portent,
A market tip, perhaps, to "bull or bear."

And so I lingered near
In the hopes to overhear
What to do, to become a millionaire.

If I take it off, me men stare,
Keep it on and women glare,
Said the puffing banker, sleek and fat,
"Though this gets me, I confess,
It's the way to solve, I guess,
This elevator problem—and the hat!"

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
(Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

RAW, PASTEURIZED OR STERILIZED.

Certified milk is the purest, safest, cleanest and by all odds the best milk for infant feeding. When it is available and the family can afford its higher cost. Certified milk is raw fresh milk produced and handled under the strictest cleanliness and rigid precautions to insure not only that the cows are healthy and free from disease, but also that milkers and handlers are free from disease.

Certified milk is the only grade of raw milk which may be considered safe for infants in large cities. In smaller towns where the milk is delivered to the home within a few hours after milking, the raw milk may be safe for infant feeding if the cow or cows have been tuberculosis tested. I am unable to assign any specific reason, but I have a strong conviction that raw milk is always preferable for infants and children when the diet consists chiefly of milk.

Pasteurization means warming or heating the milk up to 140 degrees F. holding at that temperature 20 minutes, and immediately cooling again. This, if properly carried out, destroys practically any disease germ in the milk, but it does not remove the vitamin content, render the milk less valuable for the prevention of scurvy, destroys most of the natural lactic acid and thus prevents natural souring of the milk, increases the milk's digestibility, but the milk does not sour a mother is apt to imagine it has undergone no decomposition, whereas the possible dangers from putrefaction or decomposition are not removed when the lactic acid is destroyed.

Pasteurization is the lesser of evils when it is necessary to choose between a raw and probably unsafe milk and a half cooked but safe product.

Pasteurization is a compromise. It is cheaper and easier to destroy the germs in the milk by heating than it is to keep them out of the milk by such methods as are used in producing and marketing certified milk. Even pasteurization will not make dirty milk entirely safe for a baby.

Milk may be sterilized, practically, by boiling for five minutes. Many disease producing germs may multiply in milk without giving any evidence of their presence. Boiling destroys the germs, but it does not remove the poisonous products. Boiling does not make milk more difficult for a baby to digest; in fact it seems to make the milk easier to digest, for it makes the casein particles finer and curds in the stomach. It is well to boil the milk, even though it is certified or pasteurized milk, whenever the baby has diarrhea in the summer months. If the milk is held as a regular practice over many weeks or months, it is essential to find certain things to make up for the vitamins which boiling destroys or reduces.

For this reason, and to be on the safe side, with a close rival. A baby fed with boiled milk shows a tendency toward constipation, because boiling makes the milk more completely digested, and hence less residue left to stimulate bowel movement. This renders some cereal or other addition of a carbohydrate class.

Raw milk is best if pure. As soon as choice, boiling the milk at home is probably preferable to pasteurization. If vitamin containing items are added to the infant's diet, there is no risk in feeding with milk pasteurized. It is probably a little safer than pasteurized milk.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
Paper Dropped in the Fuddle.
Any risk involved in handling a bundle of newspapers which have been accidentally dropped in the curbs of muddy water at the curb?

—T. A. C.

Answer.—Less than is involved in handling a transfer accidentally kicked by the conductor or a dime passenger has held in her mouth while closing her purse or a theater program is held in her hand, or a well licked thumb or a restaurant menu card passed from patron to patron or a treasury note which has been handled by goodness knows whom.

But none of these risks need worry one particularly if one has the habit of personal asepsis and the means or opportunity of washing the hands.

Praties Are Good for 'Em.
My child is 18 months old, strong and healthy. I feed him boiled potatoes with butter on, but some say too many potatoes aren't good for him.

Answer.—Your feeding is all right, although perhaps the potatoes are better baked. The baby should also have fresh meat, fruit, soup, or if no meat, a soft-boiled or poached egg, or some fresh fish at least three days a week, besides some cereal gruel, any kind of stewed fruit pulp, or if no cereal then some oatmeal, or cornmeal, or a little fresh milk, not less than a quart a day until the baby is five years old.

Raw Potatoes.
Very fond of raw potatoes. Will it do me any harm to eat a moderate sized raw potato every day?—Potato Bug.

Answer.—Not a bit.

Outline for First Aid.
Does an application of tincture of iodine immediately to a cut or skinned place make it immune from any infection?

Answer.—No, but there is, probably no better first aid medication for the purpose.

Safety First.
Who does not taste better when eaten from the hand as at a picnic than when eaten as served at the table?—C. T. W.

Answer.—I don't know.

Severe Setback
To "Woman's Rights"

Rome, May 10.—"Rights for women" has been given a severe setback or Premier Benito Mussolini. It was announced that Mussolini had promised Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, the American suffrage leader, that he would grant Italian women the right to vote.

It was pointed out that such a reform would necessitate the amendment of the electoral laws and the constitution.

TRAIN CRASH FATAL TO T. H. BRIDWELL

Toombsboro, Ga., May 10.—T. H. Bridwell, Sr., of this place, was fatally injured last night when he was struck by a Central of Georgia freight train one mile east of here. Bridwell was rushed to a hospital in Macon, and died this morning.

According to members of the train crew, Bridwell was seated on a cross tie when the train hit him before it could be brought to a standstill. Bridwell was formerly game warden of Wilkinson county and a former mayor of Toombsboro.

Excavators Nearing Fortune in Ducats Hidden by Bandit

Athens, May 10.—Fifty-five million Venetian ducats, the loot of the famous brigand, Ali Pasha, who terrorized the Balkans more than a hundred years ago are believed to be just within the grasp of the excavators who are digging beneath the bandit's ancient stronghold.

Scattered across the twisted paths of the labyrinthine ruins of Ali's treasure have been found the skeletons of 25 men. They were murdered because they knew the secret hiding place of Ali Pasha's wealth.

The value of the 55,000,000 ducats is approximately $115,000,000.

Montgomery, Ala., May 10.—Properties of the Alabama Power company were placed at $29,000,000 in an order of revaluation issued by the Alabama public service commission this afternoon. The valuation in the new order reduces the former value of the company's properties from $33,849,232 as placed by associate commissioners Cooper and Galliard shortly before they retired from office.

Report Declares Railroad Rates Are Lower in U.S.

Tariff Schedule Compares Favorably With Charges in Other Countries.

The report, which was prepared by the transportation group, stated that even though railroad rates are considerably higher than before the war, they are materially lower in relation to the prices of commodities generally.

A conference for those interested in the vacation Bible schools will be held in the Second Baptist church at 3:30 Sunday afternoon, with Dr. Howlett as the speaker. No phase of religious education is more popular today than the vacation Bible schools and this meeting is to be well attended by those in Atlanta who are interested in this work. The conference will be presided over by Professor Floyd Field, who is president of the Atlanta division of the Georgia Sunday School association.

Dr. Howlett will speak at the Decatur Presbyterian church on Sunday evening. Dr. D. P. McGeachy, pastor of the Decatur Presbyterian church, is the newly appointed chairman of the daily vacation Bible school committee of the South Sunday School association. It is said that the daily vacation Bible school conducted in the Decatur Presbyterian church last summer was one of the best in the United States, and plans are under way for another school this summer. Dr. Howlett's visit to Decatur is expected to help this movement grow in popularity and usefulness.

Dr. Howlett will be one of the principal speakers at the regional Sunday school conventions, which will be held in the First Methodist church, Atlanta, on May 14, 15 and 16, and in the Berry schools, at Rome, on May 16, 17 and 18. Discuss Plans For Big Electric Plant in Dawson Proposed Plant Would Supply Dawson, Shellman, Cuthbert and Others.

Dawson, Ga., May 10.—(Special.) What may be termed the greatest project ever contemplated by citizens of Terrell and Randolph counties was discussed at length at the last Kiwanis luncheon of the Dawson club.

Plans are now under way for a great hydro-electric plant which, if erected, will furnish sufficient current to supply Dawson, Shellman, Cuthbert and any other town in this immediate section that desires the services of the contemplated power plant.

The idea was advanced at the recent Kiwanis luncheon by Oscar Crittenden, of Shellman, who in brief outline told of the great need of cheaper power in these towns and also spoke of the growing demand for hydro-electric power throughout this section of the state.

There are two ideal locations nearby where the amount of power needed might easily be developed, it is said. One of the sites in question is on Kinchafosse river, in Lee county, just across the line from Terrell, and another suitable site is on Echeverry creek in Baker county, at Milford. Both locations are available for power dams and are conveniently located for the tri-town project.

Want Engineer.

Fifty Dawson men, 30 from Cuthbert and 20 from Shellman will be asked to donate $10 each with which to employ an engineer to look over the proposed sites and decide upon the one most suited and appropriate for the purpose in view. This engineer will be entirely neutral, and will have no part in letting the contract, should the project materialize. The final decision will rest entirely with the investors, who will then pay in one thousand dollars each and incorporate a company with a capital of $100,000. The remaining funds necessary to complete the plant, wiring, power lines, power lines, etc., will be obtained by floating bonds secured by a first mortgage on the property.

Hydro-electric power is developed at the lowest cost of any method yet known to produce electricity and it is estimated that the power can be developed by means of water at a cost of approximately 1-1/2 cents per kilowatt hour, whereas Dawson is at present paying 10 cents and Shellman 17 cents.

Would Cut Cost.

Should a hydro-electric power plant be contemplated, the cost of supplying these towns with power, necessarily it would cause a great decrease in the present cost of power to the consumer. The low cost of electric power would be a great inducement to bringing this section other greater manufacturing facilities of different kinds.

The Dawson Kiwanis club has appointed a committee composed of the following to investigate the matter further in connection with similar committees from Cuthbert and Shellman: W. H. Locke, E. W. Hollingsworth and S. S. Waring.

A meeting will be arranged for an early date at which time a further detailed discussion will be had on the proposed project. Power at a low cost long has been a needed item in Dawson and this section.

BLACK PROTESTS AGAINST MOVING GRADY MONUMENT

Eugene K. Black, prominent Atlanta attorney and president of the Atlanta Trust company, has joined Mayor James E. Sims in his stand against removal of the Henry W. Grady monument from Forsyth and Marietta streets to the campus of the new Senior Boys' high school, as proposed in an ordinance introduced in council by Councilman J. J. Greer.

Mr. Black called upon Mayor Sims Thursday and stated he represented the late Henry Grady, all of whom are opposed to moving the monument. "The money to build the monument," declared Mr. Black, "was contributed by people in every state in the union. Where it stands now it is an inspiration to thousands, whereas it would be seen only by a few at the high school."

FARLEY TO HEAD SHIPPING BOARD

Appointment of Chicago Man to Succeed Albert D. Lasker Announced in Washington.

Washington, May 10.—Appointment of Edward P. Farley, of Chicago, former vice president of the Emergency Fleet corporation, to succeed Albert D. Lasker, as chairman of the shipping board was announced today at the white house.

The appointment will become effective June 12 when Mr. Lasker will retire after two years' service as chairman.

The announcement of Mr. Farley's selection said he was in full accord with the policy of the administration for the maintenance of an American merchant marine. The new chairman was born in Madison, Wis., and was educated in private and public schools, and at the university of Wisconsin. In 1909 he organized the Edward P. Farley company, of Chicago, ship owners, brokers and marine insurance agents.

In 1921 he came to Washington as vice president of the Emergency Fleet corporation in charge of liquidation and served in that capacity until last August when he resigned to resume private business.

Mr. Farley was recommended to the president for appointment as shipping board chairman by Mr. Lasker and Walter C. Teague, president of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey. It was reported today that another vacancy would be created by July 1 by the resignation of J. R. Smith, president of the Emergency Fleet corporation. Mr. Smith is expected to re-establish the connections he formerly had with a New York firm.

Jewelry Saved From Bandits By Clever Ruse

Crude Map Marks Hiding Place of Fortune in Diamonds and Rubies.

Pekin, May 10.—A crude map of wild country, with an "X" marking the hiding place of her diamonds and rubies, reveals how Miss Lucy Aldrich, sister-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., saved her valuables from the Chinese bandits.

Arriving here after her harrowing experiences as a member of the foreign legion, she told how she outwitted the bandits and saved her rings.

Believing that the jewels and other valuables would be taken from her, Miss Aldrich pretended to stumble and fall while trekking along with her captors and their captives in the Shantung hills. She selected a point where a boulder stood out conspicuously and, while on the ground, slipped her jewels from her fingers. Then, after a quick survey of the country with particular attention to noticeable objects, Miss Aldrich fixed the picture of the scene in her memory and later transferred to paper a crude map of the land and hiding spot of her valuables. Armed with this map, friends of Miss Aldrich are to visit the scene of the kidnapping in an effort to locate the cache of her gems and recover the valuables.

The wealthy woman, accompanied by Miss Myrtle MacFadden, her traveling companion, and a maid, who were captured, came here from Tientsin where they have been recuperating from the trying experience. Miss Aldrich probably will enter the Rockefeller hospital here until she recovers from her nervous shock and until her feet, which are cut and bruised, heal.

Miss Aldrich, it has been learned, did not walk as far as the other women prisoners after the raid on the train. After stumbling along a few miles through the hills, she could no longer carry on. The bandits left her in charge of other Chinese, who were ordered to direct her to a railroad.

At any rate, the man who uses a sandbag to get your money doesn't make you file a return.—Vancouver World.

Police Find Car Of Missing Man; FEAR FOUL PLAY

The finding Thursday of J. A. Maloney's sedan in the rear of the Hurt building, caused local officers and friends to redouble their efforts to solve the mystery that has surrounded his absence from his home in Kirkwood since last Monday morning.

Maloney, a building contractor, told his wife as he left home Monday morning, that he would return about 1 o'clock that afternoon. That is the last that she has heard from him, and she believes he met with foul play. He was expecting to collect some money while away, she stated.

The condition of Maloney's car led officers to believe that it had not been driven in several days.

Another search being prosecuted by the police is for 16-year-old Mary Marie Mathies, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Mathies, 209 Parker street, who has been missing since April 9. She left home without a coat or hat, presumably to go to a nearby grocery store.

FOREIGN TRADE COURSE URGED FOR COLLEGES

Dr. C. L. Swiggert, Head of Foreign Trade Body, Recommends Quick Action.

While in Atlanta Thursday, Dr. C. L. Swiggert, of Washington, D. C., chairman of a committee of 15 on educational preparation for foreign trade service, told The Constitution that a strenuous effort will be made by the committee to have a foreign trade course added to the curriculum of every college and university in the state of Georgia.

Dr. Swiggert also declared that before the committee explained to various departments the necessity of installing foreign trade departments, not one college in the United States had one, or had even considered it. Today, after several years work, more than 4,000 students are enrolled in that course at a score or more of the leading colleges in the United States.

Dr. Swiggert stated that he had come to Atlanta in the interest of a national commercial educational conference, from New Orleans, where instructors and heads of foreign trade departments met to discuss the most logical course of student training for service abroad. The conference was very successful, and among the speakers were listed some of the most prominent exporters and importers in the country, and perhaps in the world, he asserted.

Efforts will be made by the school to get at least one institution in Georgia, Florida, Alabama, South and North Carolina, and Tennessee to add the department of foreign service before the opening of the schools next September. A department training one for that service is of economic benefit to the south, because of its nearness to Cuba, Mexico and South American countries, and business with them has been growing larger and larger each year.

FIRST METHODIST TRAINING SCHOOL INTEREST GROWS

Interest in the Atlanta Methodist Standard Training school, now being held every evening during the week at the First Methodist church, is growing. Officials declared Thursday. More than 400 students will stand examinations at the end of the week.

Devotional exercises Thursday were conducted by Rev. Elam F. Dempsey, secretary of the north Georgia conference. Joel Hunter, chairman of the board of managers of the school, presided. The school will close Saturday evening.

IMPROVEMENT SHOWN IN WEBB'S CONDITION

Slight improvement Thursday was noted by surgeons at the Grady hospital in the condition of Tom Webb, 44, of 5 Hirsch avenue, whose skull was fractured by a soda pop bottle Wednesday afternoon while he was watching the ball game at Ponce de Leon park.

C. Dappell was arrested by Officer J. D. Allen as the hurler of the missile. His address was shown on the police blotter as 175 East Pine street, which is incorrect, according to C. A. Lamplin, who states he has been living at this address for the past three years, and does not know Clappell.

Beauty and Quality

Sentiment makes life worth living. In the early days of the world man was satisfied with the bare necessities of life. When he had feasted and slept he desired no more; in fact, he was little better than the four-footed animals, and because of that the Aborigine who lived but to eat and keep warm has passed away without leaving anything to posterity to warrant or bless his existence.

But by and by ambition knocked and made him create beautiful and lasting things to delight the eye, to enrich his life and make more endurable his burdens.

Useful and beautiful articles in Gold and Silver is man's protest against the ugly things of life.

We serve the finer side of life by selling Beauty and Quality—the things that make life worth while.

THE VITAL FLAME

BY MAY CHRISTIE

A Stirring Serial of Primitive Passions

CHAPTER LXI

The Answer to Miles' Question.

Her father cleared his throat.

"I ought to have insured the vase," but I didn't. I took it back to Mr.

Treman's room that night, and the following morning went back there to meet the purchaser. When I arived, Treman was in bed, having his breakfast. We went into the sitting-room together, and the first thing I saw was the vase—the original and highly valuable one—lying smashed in fifty pieces on the floor!"

Marcella started in dismay.

"And you hadn't insured it? Oh, what a calamity!" Her candles in the air dissolved. Financial difficulties would continue. Then clutching at a straw—

"But how d'you know it was the original, if you couldn't really tell the two apart?"

"Two reasons. One was that the imitation vase was marked by me with a little sign. Secondly, it was carefully packed away in a box in a cupboard, where it still remained."

Marcella stared at the speaker whose head was bowed so dejectedly.

How very careless he had been!

"Where did you leave the other vase, the valuable one?"

"Up on the mantel-piece. It seemed so safe."

"And Warwick slept in the adjoining room all night?"

"Yes. He can't account for it. His bedroom window was open and he thinks a cat may have wandered in from the fire-escape and so through to the sitting-room, and got up on the mantel-piece and knocked it over.

He didn't hesitate to tell me how careless I had been about not packing

it away."

Marcella's pretty eyes were rueful.

Then a light, half horror, half excited suspicion, dawned in them.

"You don't by any chance think that Warwick himself smashed the original, just to get us more and more in his power?"

Luckily, her father was too perturbed to notice the queer phrase:

"more and more."

He shook his head.

"He seemed too upset and sorry for my loss, to have done such a senseless thing. He said that he'd strike a bargain with the copy. The latter was worth quite a sum. He assured me, since the original had gone."

"Indeed?" another suspicion came to the girl's active mind. And then,

with apparent irrelevance she asked—

"Didn't you try and piece the original together?"

"I tried, but it was too far gone for that."

"And you're sure the other was the imitation?"

"Positively. My mark was there, just where I had made it. The vase was in the cupboard in its wrapping,

just as I had left it."

"And you went away, leaving Warwick to dicker with the client?"

"Yes, I'm no good at haggling.

Besides, I was too upset."

"I see," Marcella nodded. "Warwick told your client it was only a copy, did he?"

"No. Here's where the trouble happens. The purchaser, being detained, sent a message by telephone, asking that the vase be delivered at his home. Treman let it go without a word, beyond telling the client, by telephone, to deal with me direct.

The next thing I knew was that a cheque came to me for twenty thousand dollars."

But of course you sent it back again?" gasped Marcella, staring at her father. Always he had been the very soul of honor—!

Brokenly he stammered—

"I had paid the cheque into my bank before I realized they didn't know it was a copy. I thought that Treman had struck a clever bargain.

And—afterwards I saved my conscience with the thought that the two vases were so utterly alike—

that, with the original gone forever,

it was quite in order that the copy,

being unique in itself, should be so highly priced—we needed the money,

Marcella, you and I—"

"And because of that," said the girl dearly, and with a shudder, you've obtained the money under false pretenses—you've gone and put yourself in the power of the owl

Heavens! what on earth will happen to us when the truth comes out?"

Father and daughter returned to the Long Island bungalow the following morning.

Before leaving, Marcella rang up

Miles. The weight on her mind was so appalling that it made her sound

"distracted" and almost cold.

"Oh, no! I can't see you today.

And—please don't come to the station. Mr. Treman will be there."

Ensued a pregnant pause. Then

Miles, trying to sound calm, but very strained in tone:

"I thought we settled all that yesterday. You were to go to him and explain that—caring for me as you did, and do—it's quite impossible to go on with the engagement. Have you forgotten? Or shall I deal with him?"

She shivered. Treman would cast a slur upon her father. Not even

Miles must ever know her father's lapse—

"I shall talk to him myself," she stammered, realizing what a horrible false impression she was giving

Miles. "Everything'll come out all right in the end. I know it will. I —hope so."

Strange words from a girl who,

yesterday, had agreed to snap the chains that bound her, with the least possible delay!

"You regret having promised me too much, then?" was a lover's natural assumption, spoken in a voice curt with anxiety.

"It isn't that. But I must take my time. I mustn't make him angry.

He—he could do me so much harm!"

Hard bearing for a lover's ears!

"Marcella, did you tell me everything? Isn't there something that you're holding back?"

She hesitated. There was something—terrible—! He sensed it, too.

Her mind groped for adequate words to meet the situation. But not a phrase would come. She had to be sincere with Miles—sincere, or silent! And, perforce, she chose the latter, suddenly, snatching the receiver back upon its hook.

He did not ring her up. She waited for five palpitating minutes, staring at the telephone.

"He is hurt and angry. The accusing sentences kept ringing in her ears. And he was not justified? Why this shameful affair of father's crowned out to damaged her and for Miles and make her indifferent to the peculiar charm of a farewell conversation with one she loved. Again her heart called out for enlightenment. Her manner was indeed changeable and, maddening to one with whom she should be most frank. Frankness—that's what is needed in dealing with Miles—and courage. Had she told him everything? Yes, everything—but her father's error.

Chicago, May 10.—The twenty-will be held in Chicago in 1926, ac-ording to an announcement by Archbishop George W. Mundelein.

This will be the first of the Eucharistic congresses to be held in

of the congress, indicated that Pope

Pius XI. had given his approval of

VISITORS FEAST ON GEORGIA 'CUE AND BRUNSWICK STEW; CONVENTION'S LAST AND BUSIEST SESSION HELD TODAY

Delegates Are Guests Of Inter-Civic Council

The event of the play day which the delegates to the mid-biennial council of the General Federation of Women's Clubs enjoyed to the fullest extent Thursday was the barbecue at the Druid Hills Golf club. At this time the slogan, "Barbecue and Brunswick Stew," which caught the attention of the delegates at the last convention when the invitation to Atlanta was given, became real when the delegates and visitors assembled at the lovely Druid Hills Golf club and the fun really began.

There were many unusual features at this wonderful barbecue. In the first place the parade of automobiles was the largest ever held in the city, and all traffic was halted, during the time consumed in moving over three thousand people.

Then it is said to be the largest barbecue ever held here. Then the army took a hand and General Shanks had tents erected to protect the guests. The Emory students took part and "waited" on everybody; negro spirituals were sung, "Cousin Fred" Houser was there, Anna Steese Richardson said she never had such a good time in her life; Mrs. Winter and Mrs. Pennybacker were in holiday mood and then—and then—well, it was a real old-fashioned barbecue with good things to eat and good folks to eat them.

Inter-Civic Council Is Host.
The barbecue was a compliment extended by the inter-civic council which is made up of all the civic organizations in the city, including the Rotary, Kiwanis, Lions, Civitan clubs, and the chamber of commerce.

Mrs. Lee Hagas, Mrs. Guy Woodford, Mrs. D. R. Wilder and Mrs. Walter Sims, composed the committee of hostesses from the Atlanta Women's club, who received the guests.

The assisting hosts were: John M. Cooper, chairman; James L. Logan, Fred Rogers, Walter Hill, E. V. Pomeroi, Howard Motley, Lamar Etheridge, W. H. White, Jr., Norman Sharp, Louis Near, Louis Millsaps, William King, T. T. Koch, J. D. Kilpatrick, Wilmer L. Moore, Sr., Paul Voss, James Malone, Clarence Coppedge, Russell Bridges, A. H. Gardner, Henry Bonney, W. H. Durden, W. H. Rapp, Van Wilkinson, George Edwards, W. M. Zirkle, Robert Greer, S. F. Boykin, W. W. Lotz, Joseph, James L. Mayson, H. C. Alden, Arthur Chase, Theodore Martin, J. L. Campbell, Wade Davis, W. D. Coleman, John Denton, Cliff C. Hatcher, W. O. Foote, Paul Corke, Tom Coggins, Andrew Boyd, Charles Jean, Herbert Choate, M. S. Rankin, John Toler, M. C. Harden, W. S. A. Rev, L. C. McKinnon, Carl Fischer, Cosby Swanson, Ed Kennedy, W. C. Jaraman, Claude Frederick, Marvin Yoderwood, Henry Zurr, Hater, Annis T. Bush and Walter Candler.

Colonel Paxton Is Marshal.
Colonel Frederic J. Paxton was grand marshal of the mammoth parade of clubwomen, civic organizations, members of the American Legion and visitors, which were escorted from the tabernacle, where the council session was held, to the club grounds.

Major Foville McWhorter acted as marshal and the assistant marshals were Fred Houser, W. O. Foote, Col-

Dr. and Mrs. Roy Give Reception.

Dr. and Mrs. Dunbar Roy are in Atlantic City attending the annual convention of American and Canadian Laryngological, Rhinological and Otolaryngological association, which will meet the coming week at the Hotel Ambassador, of which Dr. Roy is president.

Dr. and Mrs. Roy entertained at a brilliant reception Thursday in compliment to the visiting doctors and their wives in the Venetian room of the Hotel Ambassador.

Dr. and Mrs. Roy are being complimented with many dinners, luncheons and other social courtesies during the session of the convention.

Many Special Parties Are on Today's Program

Friday will usher in the most interesting and alive day of the entire council week—interesting because it is the last day and the delegates will meet for the last time together in Atlanta. Many resolutions will be passed, the question box will be opened, and business of importance carried through so that the time will be one of nerve and excitement. With the evening session the official program of the convention will come to the end and the meeting of brilliant women will finally adjourn.

As the week is drawing to a close the delegates are being entertained less at general affairs and more at special parties that are proving a source of real congeniality and pleasure.

The only affair that includes all of the delegates will be the tea of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. The members of the Atlanta chapter will keep open house from 4 to 6 o'clock at the chapter house on Juniper street in honor of the visitors.

Three Luncheons Planned.
Three luncheons are among the parties for particular delegates. Mrs. H. B. Todd and members of a Delaware committee will honor the guests from Delaware. The North Carolina society will give a luncheon at the Druid Hills Golf club in compliment to Mrs. Sidney Perry Cooper, president of the North Carolina federation, and the Buckeye Women's club will entertain the Ohio delegates at the Peacock.

A tea given by the Democratic women of Georgia for Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, national democratic committee woman, will be among the gala activities of the afternoon.

The southern's dinner in the evening is one of the star features of the convention. It is purely social and is delightful from every point of view. Miss Zella Armstrong will preside. The speeches will be limited to two minutes and some surprises are to be sprung. It is said, on even the speakers themselves. Only the presidents of southern states can speak or southern women who are officers in the general federation and the southeastern council.

Mrs. J. W. Emrich And Mrs. Ascough Are in Atlanta

Mrs. Jeannette Wallace Emrich, national director of women's organizations for the Near East relief, and Mrs. Lillian M. Ascough, associate director, are in attendance at the biennial conference.

Mrs. Emrich, who has recently returned from Constantinople. She has had 18 years of residence in the Near East and has made a careful study of the people and conditions there, and has a national reputation as an authority on this part of the world. She has lived ten years in Mesopotamia in education work with her husband under the American board of foreign missions. After Dr. Emrich's death she returned alone to Constantinople with her children and has been carrying on relief work among the refugees there for the past two years. She has had charge of the refugee children in the city of Constantinople whose fathers had been killed but who had mothers or grandmothers left. She had immediate supervision over 6,000 children, 3,000 women, widowed, and 600 grandmothers. She established the first day nurseries in that city. Mrs. Emrich's home is in Massachusetts and she was recently decorated by the governor of that state for distinguished service in the Near East.

An interesting exercise now in progress at Brenau college, Gainesville, will be the graduating song recital, to be given by Miss Winifred Bird in the Brenau auditorium on Friday evening, May 11.

Miss Bird is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bird, of Virginia avenue, Atlanta. She has been an honor student throughout her college career, which will culminate in her recital of next Friday. A goodly number of her Atlanta friends will make the trip to Gainesville for the auspicious occasion.

Miss Bird's vocal training has been in the hands of Wilford Waters, the well-known voice teacher, who is a member of the faculty of Brenau college and also of the Atlanta Conservatory of Music.

Senior Class Is Entertained.

Mrs. Jennings Is in Line For Next President General

BY BESSIE SHAW STAFFORD.

A brilliant and distinguished southern woman, Mrs. W. S. Jennings, of Jacksonville, Fla., is in direct line although she has not announced her candidacy for the next president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. The election takes place the first week of June, 1922. She is now first vice president of the general federation and is a past president of the Florida Federation of Women's Clubs. She is in Atlanta attending the mid-biennial council.

Founder of State Park.

Mrs. Jennings is the founder of the Royal Palm state park, and secured the grant of 920 acres of land in Dade county below Miami, where the park lies, the only tropical jungle of its kind in the United States. It belongs botanically to the West Indies and in this park more than 250 kinds of plant life exist, according to government plant survey, and 122 kinds of birds were found in two weeks, according to the biological bureau. It is truly a bird sanctuary and a lodge house is on the grounds for the accommodation of guests. Through the efforts of the present president of the state federation 2,088 acres were added, making in all a 4,000-acre tract.

Holds Many High Offices.

As chairman of education for three years, chairman of conservation for two years in the Florida federation, and director from her state for the general federation for two years, she is thoroughly familiar with every phase of state and national work. During her vice presidency she has been especially assigned to spotlighting and playing up home demonstration throughout the United States, bringing the force of more than two million women behind the work. In the 22 months she was in charge of this work Mrs. Jennings organized 49 states by counties, and it is being continued. She is now assigned with Mrs. Wallace Perham, Glendive, Mont., second vice president of the general federation, in conducting the finances for general headquarters in Washington, D. C. She was president of the Duval County Law Enforcement league and her plan of work is being copied throughout the state on account of its marked success. This is a work in which both men and women's organizations affiliate so as to crystallize sentiment behind law. The whole purpose of the organization is to assist the law enforcement officers in every way. Many demands from other states have come for the plan. As president of the state legislative council of six largest women's organizations with a membership of 25,000, she has also held the office as chairman of legislature for the League of Women Voters for Florida.

Bill Has Been Passed.

A bill has been passed creating a children's code of commission which was a State Federation of Women's club bill; the electrocution instead of hanging, which was a League of Women Voters bill. Years ago, the state convict lease system was adopted in Florida. The bill abolishing convict leasing and whipping has already passed the house.

The senate has adopted a resolution abolishing the system of leasing, and Mrs. Jennings has no doubt but that the bill which is in committee and practically agreed upon abolishing the convict lease system will be enacted. There are many other important measures pending in which the women of Florida are deeply interested.

Talks on Headquarters Finance.

Mrs. Jennings talks interestingly of her work, together with Mrs. Porham, second vice president of the federation, who compose the special committee on headquarters finance.

"I consider the securing of Headquarters in the national capital the greatest achievement of the general federation," said Mrs. Jennings. "The benefits to be derived from an intimate touch with, and a knowledge of the work of the federation departments, bureaus and of congress, is of immeasurable value toward making available the services of this greatest of all women's organizations in governmental affairs. How well we have succeeded will be shown by a detailed report to be given later during the council meeting. However, I came to this council full of enthusiasm and confidence that the $150,000 fund for the headquarters would be entirely covered by pledges. The states were divided between us, for convenience, and I have sent out two circular letters to the directors and presidents of all my states, and to the others as information. The response has been exceedingly gratifying."

"It was my privilege, she continued, to respond to an invitation to represent the general federation and pledge our support to a national reforestation policy, and I felt perfectly sure of the approval of the department chairman, Mrs. John D. Sherman, knowing how near her heart this subject lies, and also that of Mrs. Francis Whitely, the chairman of conservation."

"Represented by the Florida legislative council, we pledge our support toward securing the enactment of a law through the Florida legislature creating a forestry board with a trained forester in co-operation with the Florida Forestry association, recently organized. This bill, which is pending legislative action, has the approval of the United States Senatorial Reforestation committee, as well as that of Col. W. B. Greedy, chief of the U. S. Forestry Service."

"As president of the Florida legislative council, I have been in attendance upon the legislature in Tallahassee since the convening of the session, the first of April, and expect to return immediately to stay until the close of same, the last of May. I have been closely associated with politics all my life and have had a long line of legislative experience, and am more and more impressed and

Federation Women Enjoy Trip to Stone Mountain

The delegates and visitors to the mid-biennial of the General Federation of Women's Clubs were given the opportunity on Thursday of visiting Stone Mountain, which is the largest solid piece of granite in the world.

The trip was made by automobile and was made possible by the Atlanta Convention bureau. The committee in charge was composed of Colonel F. J. Paxton, president of the bureau, assisted by Foville McWhorter, representing the American Legion, and Colonel George H. McMann, of Fort McPherson.

An interesting program was given in honor of the delegates, while assembled at the foot of the mountain. Gutzon Borglum, famous sculptor, explained in detail the memorial which will be carved on the steep side of this great mountain. The Emory Glee club rendered a group of southern songs which demonstrated the unusual sounding board effect.

The women returned to Emory university where they were guests of honor at a beautiful tea.

Trip to Lookout For Club Delegates.

Chattanooga club women have planned to entertain all delegates and visitors to the biennial council of the General Federation of Women's Clubs who stop en route home in that city following the close of the sessions in Atlanta.

A sight-seeing drive Monday, May 14, out to Lookout mountain and a trip up Lookout mountain incline, followed by a reception at two residences at Lookout, is planned by the Chattanooga Woman's club. Mrs. John S. Fletcher, president of that club, is in Atlanta attending the council and is seeking to place cards of invitation in the hands of every club woman. Mrs. Fletcher is stopping at the Hotel Cecil.

Kosmos club will keep "open house" for the visitors at the Hotel Patten Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

The Chattanooga Press club will entertain with a luncheon Monday and the Feger Place Garden club will give a tea in compliment.

convinced that our women's clubs should take a more active interest in this end of the work, which is, after all, the completion of a great movement—the moulding into the law the sentiment of the people on great questions. I join Mrs. Franklin White, our chairman of legislation, in urging that each club have a legislative chairman, whose duty would not only be of state and national scope, but to look after local matters of importance."

Oglethorpe Woman's Club To Honor Seniors at Tea

One of the most interesting and enjoyable commencement affairs among the college students will be the reception at which the Oglethorpe University Woman's club will entertain the senior class of the university on Tuesday afternoon, May 22, at the residence of Mrs. J. F. Sellers, on Peachtree road.

The occasion will be of interest in university circles and will assemble as guests the graduating class and the members of the faculty.

The Oglethorpe University Woman's club is a newly-formed organization, having been formed last fall for the purpose of bringing together in a congenial manner the faculty wives and other women of the university. The club has met once a month since October and has proven a happy factor in the life of Oglethorpe.

The members of the University Woman's club include, Mrs. J. F. Sellers, Mrs. James Routh, Mrs. Thornehill Jacobs, Mrs. Arthur Libby, Mrs. G. T. Nicolaisen, Mrs. I. V. Maxwell, Mrs. M. H. Hunt, Mrs. J. W. West, Mrs. D'Arneau, Miss Mary Fibeck, Miss Alma Jameson, Mrs. T. B. Armstrong, Mrs. W. J. Harney, and Mrs. Frank Anderson.

Miss Johnson Weds H. P. Williamson.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Johnson announce the marriage of their daughter, Ethel, to H. P. Williamson, Jr. The marriage was solemnized May 4 at Saint Paul's Methodist church.

Mrs. E. N. Blair, Chairman Of Democratic Committee

Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, of Washington, D. C., vice chairman of the democratic national committee, the highest position held by a woman in either party, Mrs. Blair is one of the most distinguished women attending the mid-biennial council meeting.

BY BESSIE SHAW STAFFORD.
"There are certain fundamental differences between the democratic and republican parties, and these differences are shown today in the legislation as passed by the last congress," said Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, of Washington, D. C., vice chairman of the democratic national committee, the highest position held by a woman in either party, when asked to talk on the policies at issue between these parties.

Distinct Line Up.
"On the tariff, in the revision bill, on the ship subsidy—all class legislation—there was a distinct line-up. The fact that two democrats voted with the republicans, and a few democrats on some measures, does not alter the fact that the democratic party lined up against special privilege and the republicans for it. I have just returned from a western trip and everywhere I find people turning towards the democratic party. They are not deceived by republican propaganda of 'good times' when wages advance but eleven and twelve per cent, and the dollar is worth but fifty-four and one-quarter cents; they realize that prosperity will not long survive a man's effort to make the two strike a balance."

"Women are as much interested in this matter of family finances as men, and will show this interest by their vote," she continued. "The sugar scandal has been an object lesson on the tariff that all can understand."

Club Women Choose Party.
"As for the high-minded, idealistic women who make up the membership of the federated clubs, who are deliberately choosing their parties with an idea of strengthening that party that will serve these ideals best, they have only to look back over the record of the two parties on these measures in which they have long been interested—conservation, civil service, home economics, child welfare. Women in industry, many of them are surprised to find how many of the laws they have favored have been passed in democratic administrations and how few by republican administrations. I am confident that the policy adopted by the federated club women is the policy of real conservation and law enforcement."

Administered by Men.
"On the other hand we must not forget that laws are administered by men. It is important, for instance, to choose men who will carry out civil service laws and will believe in a policy of real conservation and law enforcement."

"The democratic party will undoubtedly present such men for office. At least if it does not, it will be the women's fault for it offers women an opportunity to come into its conventions and choose its candidates. It is my contention that the democratic party has offered women a wider opportunity than has republican party to determine both measures and men."

Mrs. J. Lindsey Johnson Is Dean of State Federation

Mrs. J. Lindsey Johnson, of Rome, is one of the prominent and substantial Georgia women who figured in club work when the Georgia Federation was formed in 1893, and served on the credential committee, of which Mrs. John K. Otley was chairman. She has ever been a leading figure in state and general federation work, extending club influence, meeting most difficult problems, promoting club activities through her publications, The Southern Woman. The following article by Mrs. Felton Jones, member of the publicity committee of the Rome Woman's club tells an interesting story of the work done in the federation by Mrs. Johnson, whom she calls the dean of club work.

Dean of Club Work.
Mrs. Johnson is president of the Rome Woman's club and held the same office in that club in 1893. She was one of the organizers of the Georgia State Federation, serving on the constitution and by-laws committee and elected the first vice-president of the organization. She was state president from 1897 to 1901 and was by time of date of her presidency. Mrs. Johnson ranks as dean of the state ex-presidents and is president of the state ex-presidents club.

Mrs. Johnson's regime as president in the early days, when it took courage to act, was marked by the increase of size of federation and of much aggressive work.

In outstanding work through her efforts was the cooperation of the club women of the state with the management of the Northwestern Fair association, which remains to this day, in Atlanta.

A work, however, of which Mrs. Johnson, when asked would say she was most proud, was her work for many years on The Atlanta Constitution, as a state editor of federation page.

A page given by the editor of this journal, Clark Howell, at the request of Mrs. Johnson when president of federation, at a time when there were few to befriend the federation with even a good word, much less money expended weekly as was done by The Constitution, until the state federation won its rightful place at the head of the line, which it holds today.

Mrs. Johnson continued state editor through several succeeding administrations. The Georgia Federation thus became among the first to inform the world at large, through the columns of a metropolitan journal, the altruistic service being performed by club women. So well did she perform her duty that when a new journal was being organized in Atlanta, the advance agent said: "There is one person on The Constitution that I am going to get if money will do it," naming Mrs. Johnson. When told she did the work without remuneration of any kind description, except love of the federation, and that the friendship of the Johnson and Howell families was such that no money would win her, he expressed his amazement and disappointment.

Later, at the death of Mrs. Harry White, beloved state president, the state federation commenced work on a memorial edition of The Constitution. The talented Mrs. J. K. Otley of Atlanta, the editor, was called to Florida by illness in her family. Word was sent Mrs. Johnson on Saturday, "We hope you will take the editorship of paper until Mrs. Otley returns. We will expect you Tuesday, at 10 o'clock," as Miss Isma Dooley, of loved memory, wrote. "No one was surprised when Mrs. Johnson walked the editor's chair Tuesday, because she knew her faithfulness. For weeks even after Mrs. Otley's return, those three faithful club women, Mrs. Otley, Mrs. Johnson and Miss Isma Dooley, worked night and day to make the special edition what events proved it to be, the best ever before or since, gotten out. The late Mrs. H. W. Willet gave weeks to the assessment of short club articles and saw that not even a two-line filler should pertain to any subject except the clubs and their work."

The Southern business manager, newly arrived, said when the edition was out and found to be much over a twenty thousand dollar edition. "That had we known the southern club women as well when we began work with them as we did the morning the edition went on the street, we could easily have made it a fifty thousand dollar edition. We never saw such energy, faithfulness and brilliancy combined in this life."

In Conclusion.
In conclusion it can be said were Mrs. Johnson, herself writing, she would add what she never fails to do, that the business management of The Constitution paid the state federation fifty per cent more than they contracted to do in appreciation of the club women's fine work. Mrs. Johnson usually ends with "Was there ever such an official organ as The Atlanta Constitution? Was there ever such a federation as the Georgia state federation?"

Commercial High Play This Evening.
"Deacon Dubs" will be given Friday evening at the auditorium of the Commercial High school by the Loyal Foreign class, of the First Christian church, at 8:30 o'clock. A number of young people of talented ability will take part. The public is cordially invited. Admission will be 25 cents.

The Atlanta Woman's Club Was Organized 28 Years Ago

The Atlanta Woman's club is certainly on the club map. It has received enough praise during the biennial council in Atlanta to turn the heads of every executive who rules over its destiny, unless these heads were as level as they are and cannot be turned either on account of their achievements or because of the club family from which they are descended.

The Atlanta Constitution of November 12th, 1895, contains the following account of the organization of the Atlanta Woman's club. It is printed under the caption, please note, Atlanta club women, of "News of Society."

The reprint is as follows:

The meeting of the Atlanta Woman's club yesterday resulted in an organization which will prove satisfactory to all. The object of the meeting was explained by Mrs. Love and a temporary organization was effected with Mrs. James Jackson in the chair and Miss Huntley acting as temporary secretary. The enrollment of members showed about 40 present and the expression of the meeting was in favor of a permanent organization and proceeding to work. The officers elected were: President, Mrs. W. R. Love; first vice president, Mrs. Albert Cox; second vice president, Mrs. James Jackson; recording secretary, Miss Corinne Stocker; corresponding secretary,

Mrs. H. H. Smith; treasurer, Mrs. Hugh Hagan.

The club began its work under most auspicious circumstances and found immediate need for its activity. The first fruits of its life was yesterday crystallized into a memorial to the legislature in regard to the establishment in Atlanta of a reformatory for juvenile criminals. The bill looking to the establishment of such an institution will be discussed in the legislature this morning and the Woman's club will present its petition to the body.

Anyone who doubted the need of a Woman's club in Atlanta will see at once how useful such organized effort will be both for individual endeavor and for the public good.

Plant Flowers

You want flowering plants and ferns in the house, on the porch and in your yard. Flowers make a home out of any house or apartment.

Stop a minute and imagine your residence without a flower or green plant anywhere about. Could there be any place so ugly? What impression would you have of the people living in such a place?

Now imagine your same home, outside with a beautiful green lawn bordered with flowering plants in a myriad of rich colorings, porch and window boxes of colorful flowers, tropical hanging baskets, pots or urns with great drooping ferns.

Then go inside and see the ferns and tender plants, but pay particular attention to the cut flowers from your garden—gladioli, roses, dahlias, etc. What kind of people would you imagine lived in such a home? That's a real home, and real people, good citizens and worth-while friends.

Your plants are ready to be set out now—before hot, dry weather.

Attractive Southern Delegates

Two lovely southern women attending the mid-biennial meeting in Atlanta. At the left is Mrs. J. C. Pearson, of Marshall, Okla., chairman of the division of Americanization for the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and director for Oklahoma. Mrs. George R. Newman, of Kentucky, president of the Louisville Woman's city club.

Mrs. Albert Cox Tells Story Of Atlanta Woman's Club

Mrs. Albert H. Cox, who now resides in Chattanooga, Tenn., was one of the most prominent women identified with the foundation of the Atlanta Woman's club in 1895. Although she has changed her residence from Georgia to Tennessee, she still holds the state federation in great affection and has not forgotten the first struggles and the "little acorn from which its tall oak had grown."

Mrs. Cox believes that too much credit can not be conceded to the late Mrs. W. B. Lowe, first president, as it was through her endeavor to make it the leading club of America that today it stands without parallel in numbers and influence.

Returning from Europe, Mrs. W. B. Lowe met on shipboard a most charming lady from New York city, who was a member of Sorosis, the oldest woman's chartered club in America. This lady invited Mrs. Lowe to a meeting of Sorosis.

Mrs. Lowe was delighted with the proceedings and at once conceived the idea of forming a similar club in Atlanta. On her return to Atlanta, Mrs. Lowe called on me, and told me of her preconceived plan. She soon called a meeting of fifty or one hundred representative ladies of Atlanta to meet in the forenoon at her palatial residence on Peachtree street, and told them of her desire to organize a woman's club in Atlanta that would accustom woman's life. Mrs. Lowe was determined to place the Atlanta Woman's club on a sure foundation, so she invited Lucy Stone, president of Sorosis, to be present, and tell all about Sorosis, and its civic and educational and religious work in New York city. This was a great surprise to the ladies of Atlanta. They knew of Lucy Stone, and her anti-slavery proclivities, but never expected to see her and hear her address an audience of southern ladies as an invited guest! But

Merely Personalities

BY B. S. S.

Mrs. Wallace T. Perham, of Glendale, Mont., has a fondness for tennis and swimming. She is also a baseball fan, but says she won't play golf because it makes her thin. She only weighs 207 pounds. Mrs. Perham is second vice president of the general federation, and is very proud of her Scotch-Irish blood. One may know from the latter that she has a delicious sense of humor. Her personality is compelling and she flashes a winning smile the moment she greets you. Mrs. Perham declares she has the handsomest husband in the United States. P. S.—Ladies of the convention, are there any corrections to this last sentence?

Mrs. William Wilchrist, of Sioux City, Iowa, acting state president of the Iowa federation, says it she is indeed she plays bridge, if out-of-doors she prefers fishing and motorizing, with a decided preference for fishing.

Mrs. Leslie Steingfellow Read plays at newspaper work all the time, for she dearly loves it, and is both the managing editor and the "printer's devil."

Mrs. H. C. Lockett owns and actually operates a sheep ranch, one of the oldest outfits in the state of Arizona. Her husband was one of the leading pioneer sheep men of that state and since his death, two years ago, she has been at the head of one of the largest ranches in the country. She wrote the state federation song, "Arizona, Land of Mine," two years ago and is a musician of note. Mrs. Lockett has an exquisite soprano voice. She enjoys her radio set in playtime hours. Her winter home is in Phoenix and it is here that she spends eight months of the year, while the other four are spent in Flagstaff, where the sheep run in the pine forests. Two splendid boys are her boon companions.

Mrs. Lee Joseph, president of the Texas federation, goes to the theater for her amusement.

Golfing and swimming are among the delights of pretty bobbed-haired Miss Luella Smith, of Anniston, Ala., who represents the Enterprise club and is here for the mid-biennial.

Miss Zella Armstrong, who is editor of that scintillating little monthly periodical, "The Lookout," says she perfectly adores music.

Because she loves to talk and acknowledges that she does, makes Mrs. Brevard Jones display a truly feminine characteristic. She is state director for Alabama for the General Federation of Women's Clubs and also finds recreation by pottering around in her flower garden.

Miss Ada May Crenwell, of Kentucky, state chairman of education of the general federation, loves animals and spends her spare moments in training her pet dog which is a King Charles spaniel.

Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, of Pasadena, Cal., honorary vice president of the General Federation, has one hobby and it is work. She arises at 6:45 o'clock every morning and states that her best work is accomplished between the hours of 9 and 12 o'clock in the evening. Mrs. Burdette is only 70 years young and she is already formulating plans for the biennial of the General Federation to be held in Los Angeles in 1924.

Miss Genevieve R. Cline, United States appraiser of merchandise, who was appointed to this office by President Harding, is the first woman to hold this position. She has one hobby and that is "the tariff." She enjoys motorizing more than any other amusement feature.

"Say It With Flowers" on

MOTHERS' DAY

THERE is no way to fully express the love one feels for one's Mother. That Mother's tender devotion—the guiding hand—the loving kindness, no matter what the trials or tribulations, place the feeling one has above mere words of expression. But, happily, there are flowers available. Therefore, we sincerely say to you, that in your expression of love to a Mother, there is no better way than to—

"Say it with Flowers"

Flowers will express your thoughts of her as no other thing can do. They will carry your message of love and devotion—make her realize that no matter what other changes have been effected, you are still "her boy" or "her girl."

And though your Mother may be in a distant city, your message of flowers can be just as easily arranged for through our telegraph delivery service.

Miss Russell Talks on Winthrop College

One of the most constructive methods of extension education yet developed was revealed before the mid-biennial council of the General Federation of Women's clubs, now in session here Thursday, by Miss L. A. Russell, assistant director of Winthrop college, Rock Hill, S. C. Miss Russell came to the Atlanta meeting at the special request of Mrs. Hays, the Georgia president.

Miss Russell is the assistant of the widely known educator, Dr. Albert P. Bourland, former secretary of the Southern Education society, Washington, D. C.

"Winthrop college," she said, "while striving to meet the educational needs of almost 1,400 young women, recognizes responsibility to the mature womanhood of the state and provides continuous education for them. It was the sense of this obligation that prompted her president, Dr. D. B. Johnson, to grant the request of the South Carolina Federation of Women's clubs to establish what is known as the short course for women, the only one of its kind in the United States."

"The women in asking this felt that the talent engaged each year for the summer session of the college could easily serve other groups than teachers—clubwomen for example."

"The courses offered each year enable clubwomen to render more efficient service to their homes, to their clubs, to their communities, to their state and to the nation."

"This year these courses include citizenship, parliamentary law, public speaking, community organization, English, including courses in the short story, Browning, and journalism; current history, chemistry in its relations to progress in the physical education, and swimming. Round table conferences, led by Mrs. John Drake, president of the South Carolina Federation of Women's clubs, are planned to be held daily, giving opportunity for free discussion of club work, club programs and club methods. Many well-known lecturers have been engaged for this season, including Dr. C. Alphonso Smith, head of the department of English, United States naval academy; Dr. John E. Rhine, Columbia university; Dr. William B. Dodd, University of Chicago; Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Free Synagogue, New York; and Ellen Edgely Shaw, curator, Brooklyn Botanical Gardens."

"Winthrop college further serves the mature womanhood of the state by providing for them numerous reading courses and by arranging and publishing programs for club study. For these reading courses and club programs the extension division of the college furnishes books and reference material."

Mme. Curie Is Greatest Woman In the World, Says Mrs. Meloney

Mrs. William Brown Meloney is the editor of The Delinquent. It was she who is responsible for bringing the famous French scientist, Mme. Curie, to America. She organized the movement to give Mme. Curie the gramme of radium which came from American women. Mrs. Meloney is at this time most interested in better homes throughout the country.

BY MARTHA GOODE ANDERSON.
Mrs. William Brown Meloney, of New York, who is here attending the mid-biennial of the General Federation of Women's clubs, is the editor of The Delinquent. She is one of the outstanding women in the country. Mrs. Meloney finishes one campaign only to begin another.

Twenty years ago she wrote in her "Idea Book"—(every editor has an "idea book," you know, in which is written down things intended to be written up at some future time)—"Mrs. Meloney wrote in her 'Madame Curie is the greatest woman in the world." At that time the world was just beginning to hear of her experiments with radium and what it would do for cancer and would mean to humanity.

Though all the years Mrs. Meloney watched the career of this famous French scientist, read all she could about her and then at the first opportunity went over to France to ask her "all about it."

Mme. Curie's Simple Home.
"When I reached Madame Curie's home," said Mrs. Meloney, "I was overcome at seeing her and the way she lived that I could not say a word. She was doing every bit of her own work and she lived in the simplest and most restricted way. I had corresponded with Madame Curie all during the war and when I found her in Paris, she was living on $75 a month, with her laboratory depleted. No radium, as she had given her first grant to the French government for the soldiers and could buy no more."

"She said she would love to come to America and she said the only thing she wanted was a gram of radium to carry on her experiments. I promised her both things, unhesitatingly," said Mrs. Meloney. "Though I had only my faith in American womanhood at that time to justify such rash promises."

Promises Made Good.
"It all came to pass, though," she smiled, "and Madame Curie's coming to America is an old story now. Out of the money which the American women raised, the gram of radium was bought together with the instruments necessary to carry on her scientific work, and to establish a trust fund sufficient to give her $2,500 a year while she lives and at her death to give four students in science."

"Madame Curie," went on Mrs. Meloney, "has recently written the story of her life and that of her husband. She lives with her two daughters, one of whom is a scientist, like her mother and the other, who has the name of 'Eve' and is a gifted musician and who is beautiful as Madame Curie was in her youth."

Is Working on Mesothorium.
"Madame Curie is at work now in her laboratory on mesothorium, a by-product of radium which can be produced so cheaply that it can be with in the reach of the poorest hospital."

"At present," continued Mrs. Meloney, "there are only 85 grams of radium in the world and 62 of these are in America."

Better Homes Campaign.
Just at this time Mrs. Meloney is devoting her interests and time to a "better homes" campaign, which grew out of a visit President Harding made to a model kitchen set up in an Ohio town and inspired him to make the remark that he would like to see a model home in every city in the union."

Now the better homes campaign has resulted in model homes being equipped in 561 cities. In Washington a home is being built back of the white house and is to be a copy of the house in which John Howard Payne lived when he wrote "Home, Sweet Home." When it is equipped and fitted finished it will be in charge of Miss Lida Hafford, who is in charge of the federation headquarters in Washington.

Pioneer General Federation Officer

Miss Rosa Woodberry, parliamentarian of the State Federation of Women's clubs, Atlanta City Federation, one of the most brilliant and cultured women in club work. She was official hostess at the time the biennial met in Atlanta twenty-eight years ago, and in 1893 went to Philadelphia to invite the women there to attend the biennial held here at the Cotton States and International exposition in 1895. Miss Woodberry was the first corresponding secretary for the General Federation of Georgia and was a member of the Woman's Press club of Georgia, the oldest club to federate in 1896. Miss Woodberry is a member of the Pioneer Society of Officers of the General Federation and a life director of the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs. She wrote the history on the Georgia Federation of Women's clubs which was published in 1915. She marked the silver anniversary when the state federation convened in Savannah. This pamphlet was a souvenir from the Savannah Woman's federation and gave a very complete outline of the splendid strength of the organized women of Georgia. She has also held the office of state director of volunteer college workers of the United States food administration, secretary of the woman's auxiliary of the Diocese of Atlanta and is principal of the Woodberry School for Girls. Miss Woodberry is the pioneer officer for Georgia in the general federation.

Seminary Dancing Fete Is Spectacle of Beauty

"Cinderella" in pantomime and dancing was beautifully presented by the students of Washington seminary Thursday evening before an audience of 2,000 on the campus of the school on Peachtree road.

The presentation, which took the place of the annual May day celebration at the school, was marked by a colorful display of costumes and a series of exquisite dances.

Especially good pantomime work was done by Miss Ruth Jolly, who was Prince Charming, and Miss Claire Houser, who played the title role of Cinderella. Miss Jolly was an attractive picture in her prince's suit of white satin elaborately embroidered in blue and silver and played her part in an appealing manner. Miss Houser was as pretty a Cinderella in her raved cinder brown frock as she was when she was gowned in white satin, and was winsome and charming.

The dancing was graceful in the extreme and perhaps the loveliest that has ever been done by the seminary girls in their annual May fete. From the first to the last the girls introduced the audience to the very end, every movement was one of fairy-like charm.

The beautiful dances included a ribbon dance led by the prince and Cinderella, a court dance, lively and colorful, the heart dance, the dance of the hours of the fruit bearers, the balloon dance, of the spirits of joy.

A Gift of the Gods

Salt is an absolute food necessity. Among peoples of ancient times salt was considered a gift of the gods—prayers were offered over salt deposits. Pierce trial was resulted over the possession of salt springs.

As salt is a necessity in every household today, so are the Want-ads. Through them expensive articles are made easily obtainable.

Scope of Home Economics Discussed by Mrs. Barry

BY GRACE FISCHER.

A "specialist for women's organizations" in the A. & M. college, of Texas, and herself chairman of the home economics division of the applied education department of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. W. Barry, of Texas, is a firm believer in establishing a wider organization contact so that home economics work may reach more women and benefit especially the rural communities throughout the United States.

Her idea is to make home economics really serviceable to women, and to women in the more remote districts. Her first work when she was elected chairman of home economics, in 1920, therefore, was to promote the organization of county federations or more particularly county-wide organizations as a means of reaching the women. "I had to establish the machinery for this work before I could accomplish it," said Mrs. Barry in an interview Thursday in the home economics department of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, at the hotel. "I first brought the matter before the national women's organization. At the Des Moines biennial I presented the resolution to the general federation which called for co-operation on the part of the federation with the United States department of agriculture and the extension divisions of state colleges and universities."

Machinery Needed. A resolution passed asked that the federation create some machinery through which this co-operation could be carried on. The board of directors decided to throw the spotlight on home demonstration, over 200 county-wide organizations were formed, and this work was begun more widely. Support of home economics is now part of the program of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations and the League of Women Voters.

"The result? Women in the remote districts have organized to be more fully informed of work done by the federal and state agencies, on the farm and in the small town, and they give to the work their fullest support."

Mrs. Barry's attitude toward home economics is a human and sane one. She believes that volunteer organizations should be made generally non-scientific and simply relate women to the informed groups or scientifically trained men and women. "I believe in promoting all agencies that will help the child and help the home," Mrs. Barry said yesterday. "I have begun to enumerate as examples home economics classes in high schools, Smith-Hughes vocational classes, home demonstration, 'Women's clubs,' 'their opportunities,' very centrally Mrs. Barry remarked. Then this authority on applied education gave a pretty bouquet to Mrs. Newton Wing and her home economics department at the club."

Praises Atlanta Club.

"The Atlanta Woman's club," said Mrs. Barry, "has done the biggest work of any club I have come in contact with in utilizing opportunities of the home economics division of the applied education department of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. It is in very a specialist in women's organizations was not always as interested as she is now in home economics. Her specialty is arts and literature, and her chief joy is in poetry. Having become deeply concerned with club work which was formerly her avocation, she is now interested in seeing the cultural and spiritual side of home life developed, and she firmly believes that the law of beauty should hold in home economics as in everything else."

HOME REMEDIES OF OUR ANCESTORS

Almost every man and woman in America can remember the botanical recipes of our mothers and grandmothers for the treatment of diseases, and they were wonderfully dependable too. Every fall there were stored away in the attic thoroughwort, pennyroyal, catnip, sage, wormwood, etc., for treating ills of the family during the winter months that followed. In 1873, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was first prepared from one of these botanical recipes, and the demand for it has increased to such an extent that hundreds of tons of roots and herbs are now used annually in its preparation. It has recently been proved that 98 out of every 100 women who try it have been benefited by its use, which is a marvelous record for any medicine to hold.

The Secret of Having Beautiful Hair

Beautiful hair—hair that is soft and silky—adds more than anything else to your attractiveness and charm. Beautiful hair is not a matter of luck, it is simply a matter of care. You can have beautiful hair if you shampoo it properly. Proper shampooing is what brings out all the real life and lustre, the natural wave and color, and makes it soft, fresh and luxuriant.

Your hair simply needs frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, but it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soap. The free alkali, in ordinary soap, soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it. This is why leading motion picture stars and millions of women, everywhere, use Mulsified Coconut Oil Shampoo.

This clear, pure, and entirely greaseless product cannot possibly injure, and does not dry the scalp or make the hair brittle, no matter how often you use it. Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dirt, dust, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and has the appearance of being much thicker and heavier than it really is. It leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, fresh-looking and fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified Coconut Oil Shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive and a four ounce bottle lasts for months.

She Registers With Smile Thousands of Club Women

BY MAINER LEE TOLER.

Registering thousands of women with a smile for each and every one for eight consecutive years is a tremendous task, but that is just what Mrs. D. L. Murray, of Pasadena, Cal., has been doing as credentials chairman of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Registering Delegates. She organized the great machinery for registering delegates to the mid-biennial council of the general federation into a perfect system known as the "unit system."

It takes care of every minute detail of the work in a most systematic manner, so much so that at election time the local credential committee can step out and the national committee take its place with perfect ease and "carry on."

Mrs. Murray was most enthusiastic in her praise for Mrs. Howard McCall, local chairman of credentials for the convention, who many weeks ago had appointed a group of reliable, capable Atlanta women to serve on this committee. In speaking of Mrs. McCall, Mrs. Murray stated, "Mrs. McCall is decidedly the most efficient local credentials chairman that has ever been my experience to have served with me. The manner in which she worked out every detail before my arrival for the council has been magnificent."

"But," said Mrs. Murray, the best of all is the happy spirit in which Mrs. McCall has worked and the sunshine she has brought to all of us laboring here in the registration headquarters through her happy disposition."

Mrs. Murray's sweet, intelligent face lighted up with a broad smile when a question was asked concerning the council meeting of the general federation which convenes in Los Angeles, Cal., next year, her own home state. She told me about the

JIL-BETT

BY LAURA JEAN LIBBEY

"Clairena is as proud as she is beautiful; that is why my wedding decoration must have cut her to the heart's core. Were I to have remained away for life, she would never have wed another—she would be true to me. No other man would ever be permitted to lead her to the altar, and call her by the sacred name of wife."

"This very knowledge of her character, and the realization that it would wreck her life, causes me to renew my pleading to you to set me free, for her sweet sake, if not for my own. If you refuse, you will wreck two lives, both Clairena's and mine. I will plead to you, for her sake, on my knees, if it be necessary."

Jil-Bett's continued silence alarmed him. Did she still intend to hold him by calling chains which refused to break, no matter how much pressure was brought to bear? He had used every argument that was to be thought of, there was not another word he could think of to say other than: "This is our last night on shipboard. God! what shall I do if my darling is awaiting me. I have sent them a message by wireless that I am on this boat. You MUST decide, here and now, you see!"

Jil-Bett looked out over the waters with eyes that did not see the wondrous beauty of the night. She was inwardly praying God to give her strength not to fall dead at his feet as she listened to his pleadings. How he must love this beautiful Clairena, who would remain single all her life, unless she wed him. She was as fair as the morning, he had said; more beautiful than any other girl the whole world held.

She wondered dully why fate had been so cruel to her, as to put one in her path who idolized another? Why had she learned to love him so, he whose every heart-beat was for the girl from whom she had separated—though so innocently and unintentionally—certainly not of her own volition?

She looked up at the stars burning in the blue above her. The large, beautiful one that she had once told Jack was the chink through which she believed her young mother, whom she had lost in her infancy, was looking down upon her.

No one could have guessed from the calm demeanor and marble-white face—not a muscle of which twitched—the terrible battle that was raging in her soul. Which was the right thing, which the wrong thing to do? He was bound to her while they two should live by the most sacred of all bonds—the marriage tie, and she loved him a thousand-fold more, if that could be, than this beautiful Clairena for whom he was pleading.

He would have her set him free because of Clairena's great love for him. But what of HER love for him? Did he make no account of that or did HER love not matter to him, or her heart, if it was broken, and her life wrecked because of him?

Her continued silence caused him to become suspicious that it was the calm before the hurricane, which might sweep all before it. He felt that it would be a fierce battle between two women, as to which could and would hold him. He had made his plea; age, made his words a prayer to the girl. He had offered half of his splendid fortune, was more could he say or do to influence her?

Just such a scene, in its dead calm, had ended in a tragedy.

What was she intending to do? Her face did not betray the seething emotion that was gripping her very soul. The ship's bells tolled off the hour. It was getting very late; they could not remain there very much longer; what would her answer be? He thought of Clairena, beautiful, faithful Clairena, who loved him so, and who had the first right to his devotion; then he looked at the girl by his side, for whom he had no love, only pity, and he stifled with difficulty the groan of despair that rose to his lips.

XXXVII.

Jil-Bett realized, dimly, that he was waiting for her answer, the words she must speak to decide this Clairena's fate, as well as her own; her lips moved, but no sound came from them. She, too, heard the ship's bells, and realized it was getting late—that what she said must be said quickly.

He had said: "Put yourself in Clairena's place, and realize how you would decide." If Clairena was in her place, how would she decide? Would she give up the man she loved, and who was bound to her, for another girl, whom she did not even know?

This problem faced her.

Then like a thunderbolt out of a clear sky came to her the realization that his desires should weigh deciding the situation. If she should keep him from Clairena, he would despise her. He had declared in that other interview that he should go away so far she would never look upon his face again, so what would she gain by holding to an unwilling mate?

A few drops of moisture fell upon her upturned face, seemingly from the star up to which she gazed. She thought they must be angel tears; that her young mother was looking down upon her, weeping for the great sorrow that had overtaken her poor little child.

The wind was freshening, a chill breeze crept over the waste of water. Jil-Bett did not even feel it, the fire in her heart burned so fiercely. How should she decide? Judgment said, "No, no!"

At length he broke the awkward, prolonged silence. "At sunrise tomorrow we shall land in New York," he began.

"Yes," she answered, with a slight catch in her breath, "and you will hasten to the beautiful girl you love."

"That will be impossible now," he said, more to himself than her. She turned her face toward him: he saw it was wet with tears. "I shall not stand between you and happiness, Jack," she said in a low voice, which quivered piteously, in spite of her efforts at self-control. "I intend to set you free."

She saw a quick, glad light leap into his eyes, and a flash mount to his face. After a moment of deep, hushed silence, he turned to her, asking: "Why would you do this for me? Why?"

"Because I love you," she said with child-like simplicity. It did not occur to her not to answer him truthfully.

A deep silence followed her words; he did not know what to say; he looked at her fixedly. It had not dawned upon him that he was so dear to her, that she would consign herself to a lifetime of sorrow that he might find happiness. Standing there, looking down into her face, over which great tears were falling slowly, he wondered how it was possible she could have given such a great love unthought.

Poor little Jil-Bett! He pitied her profoundly. The nobility of the girl, the stupendous sacrifice she would make for him, because she loved him and wanted him to be happy, though that happiness meant life with another, touched him to the heart's core. Impulsively he took her two little cold fluttering hands in his. The thought swept over him how much more noble she was than he. She was willing to make a supreme sacrifice for him; had he shown a desire to make a life sacrifice for her? She held him bound fast to her by the most solemn ties—marriage! She was his wife, her husband, who had taken upon himself the solemn vow to cleave unto her, and protect her, until death should part them. Could he allow a timid, loving girl to be more magnanimous than he? His head and heart were in a whirl.

"I am going in now. To know that I have been the cause of giving you happiness, will always be a dear thought to me, keeping my heart from breaking. When you think of me, poor, unhappy Jil-Bett, try to think of me kindly, and at my best. Would you mind—would it be wrong for me to crave from you a good-by kiss? Remember, I am going out of your life forever."

When Hearts Command

BY ELIZABETH YORK MILLER

Afterwards he often thought of that afternoon in the olive grove above the Old Town. It marked such a curious crisis in his life; a revolution in thought and in deed. Alice was silent most of the time, a little frightened and miserable. His caresses were scarcely acceptable, since there was this secret separating them—the thing he could discuss with Mrs. Egan but not with her. She suffered his arm about her waist, his order kisses but she gazed negatively that in some way—not too clear to her—she was an object of pity.

So Ardenne was content to busy himself with the details of his own problem. Was there not a higher form of love than the mere physical union of man and woman? Because that was closed, were there not others opening upon as fair fields of happiness. How often he had preached that doctrine. And sometimes he had been rewarded by a gleam in the eye, a smile of sheer nobility, a tone in the voice that proclaimed strength and purpose.

"I understand, doctor. Of course you're right." Then would follow an exclamation of pity for the beloved, but never for self; never a complaint that life would be difficult for self.

Yes, there were plenty of other doors—friendship, comradeship, true helpmate, as a brother and sister may be to each other; loving no less devotedly because passion entered not into their lives. Such a relation was possible and happiness might result from it. But how to explain to Alice without disclosing the grim reason? In theory, perhaps; in the sentimentality of a supposedly sexless age and condition—that of a conventionally portrayed mid-Victorian maid—no explanation would not be necessary. But if such girls ever existed, it was certain that now they were totally extinct. Short of cruelly insulting her by conduct she could not possibly understand, there was nothing he could do but tell her the truth.

And this completed the unpleasant circle, for telling her the truth might so easily throw her into the morbid condition of mind that would be so bad for her. Anyway, he could not tell her now. It must be after their marriage, when he could look after her and safeguard her in every way. It was fortunate that he possessed an independent income. Already he was planning for the immediate future. His partner—as the modern physician terms his favored colleague—must carry on a little longer without him. Perhaps for as much as a year. It might take as much time as that to win Alice's complete confidence and shake themselves down into an attitude of mutual trust and forbearance, to say nothing of the comradeship he counted upon. Life must resolve itself into more golf and tennis and less love-making—that is to say, putting it badly, fewer kisses. A prolonged, if slightly prosaic and matter of fact courtship. He would set himself this great task, and please God he would succeed in it.

The decision left him with a sensation as of bells ringing in his ears, sweet toned bells proclaiming a victory. He was exalted by it. All the dress burned away, and now the bells of victory—the greatest of all victories, self-vanquished, the spirit triumphant.

"Alice dear, would you mind if we were married almost at once?" he asked.

His question, unexpected, gave her a feeling of panic. It was as though he had her mind. She had been saying to herself: "If Philip and I aren't married soon—quite soon—perhaps some terrible thing will happen to prevent our marrying at all."

"I don't—I don't mind," she brought out in a hurried little gasp.

"With your mother's consent, of course," he added. "It would have to be at Genoa before the British consul. But we could be married afterwards in church—directly afterwards."

That was how her mother had been married, or something like it. She was a little confused and pressed him for details. Would such a ceremony be legal in England? Yes, if her mother didn't object; yes, she wouldn't mind being married in Genoa, and soon. It would save a lot of bother and expense. If Philip was quite sure— (Continued Tomorrow.)

TAX REDUCTIONS PLAN AFFIRMED

Postmaster-General Now
Announces Intention of Administration at Next Session of Congress.

Mansfield, Ohio, May 10.—The intention of the administration to seek reductions in taxes at the next session of congress was affirmed by Postmaster General New in a speech here on the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of John Sherman, one of Ohio's most famous senators.

"I happen to know that it is the belief of the administration—certainly it is the hope—that all these prospective conditions will permit the unexpected to happen in the form of an early reduction of federal taxation," Mr. New said.

"If our customs receipts continue at anything like the present rate, and if better business brings to the treasury a surplus, which it is at least temporarily doing, the reduction will be certain."

New had in mind the recent statement of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon who estimated that the current fiscal year would be closed on June 30 with a surplus of $125,000,000. He made no mention of the world court plan.

The postmaster general declared his opposition to the primary as it is now operated and said it was breaking down party solidarity. He said he has disapproved of practically every policy for which the democratic party ever stood but would, nevertheless, rather trust it than to trust a lot of people who do not know what they want or for what they stand."

New said there were differences among Republicans but that the democrats were no better off.

Radio and Phonograph Sets in Table Lamp

(From Popular Mechanics Magazine.)

Tenacious adaptability of radio outfits continue to appear on the market. One enterprising inventor having fitted up a table lamp to include both a radio set and phonograph in its base. No aerial is required; neither are batteries necessary. One of the special features of the outfit is the use of a magnified diaphragm, built like a camera shutter, which can be opened or closed in order to vary the volume of sound.

Her father, J. B. Zachry, has been a resident of Atlanta for 35 years and his daughter has been a student both of Forrest Avenue and of Lee Street grammar schools. Her work in the high school has been so efficient that she has never had to stand an examination during the four years of work there.

Three candidates are nominated each year by the faculty for the Agnes Scott scholarship. The students vote their choice. Miss Martha Crowe and Miss Francis Craighead are the other two candidates.

Miss Crowe, in addition to being a leader in her studies, has devoted much time to other school activities.

BOYS' HIGH CLUB PRESENTS COMEDY ON ENGLISH LIFE

A comedy in five acts, fascinatingly quaint with the spirit of English village life of the 16th century, was presented by the Boys' High Dramatic club Thursday evening.

"The Shoemaker's Holiday" as rendered by the youthful actors of Boys' High stood out above the ordinary amateur offerings. The work of all the players was characterized by enthusiasm and genuineness of feeling.

The part of Simon Eyre, the shoemaker, as portrayed by Robert Oliver, deserves particular mention. Alfred Ruffy as Hans, and William Crowe as daughter to Sir Roger, handled difficult parts skillfully.

An enjoyable feature of the play was the music furnished by a full orchestra of Boys' High men. It is a large orchestra for school organization, and appears to have had the benefit of thorough training. The orchestra is conducted by Mr. Walters.

The members of the Boys' High Dramatic club completely won the well filled house that greeted them.

The cast was as follows: The King, John Candler; The Earl of Cornwall, Franklin Carter; Sir Hugh Lucy, Earl of Lincoln, Willard Bandy; Rowland Lacy, otherwise Hans, Alfred Ruffy; Askew Lacy, John Candler; Sir Thomas Okeley, Lord Mayor of London, D. K. Bousser; Master Hammon, a citizen of London, Gordon Keith; Simon Eyre, the shoemaker, Robert Oliver; Roger, commonly called Hodge, Frank McMillen; Fisk, Eyre's journeyman, Hudson Edwards; Ralph, Clarence Palmer; Lovell, a courier, Gordon Keith; Dodger, servant to the Earl of Lincoln, Fred Stewart; a Dutch skipper, Clarence Palmer; a boy, Lunar Mauley; Rose, daughter of Sir Roger, William Crowe; Schill, her maid, Charles Johnson; Jargery, wife of Simon Eyre, Griffith Edwards; Jane wife of Ralph, Franklin Carter.

"WHAT'S A JITNEY?" WILL BE DECIDED BY CITY RECORDER

"When is a jitney not a jitney, and when does a jitney become a taxicab?" are two questions that will be decided by Judge George Johnson today in recorder's court.

Five drivers will appear before him, who were arrested Tuesday afternoon, while carrying passengers to Ponce de Leon park. They are charged with operating jitneys without the $1,000 indemnity bond, ordered by council recently.

City Attorney Mayson has ruled in a letter to Chief Beavers that a jitney becomes a taxicab when the driver charges more than ten cents for fare and runs on no special route.
